Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, whose personally written platform was adopted by the Democrats in 1920, made public today a draft of the resolutions which he will present to the forthcoming Democratic national convention in New York.

"For in the light of that body, any act or order or creed which assaults or seeks, openly or covertly, to impair this inalienable right of religious freedom is to be condemned and resisted as a menace to organized society."

The platform ends with the statement that the convention "salutes the spirit of Woodrow Wilson and acclaims his covenant of peace with the world."

PROSECUTOR'S TESTIMONY KEPT OUT OF RECORD ON OBJECTION TO IT AS HEARSAY.

An instructed verdict of not guilty was returned yesterday at the trial of Arthur D. Willecken, former Circuit Clerk of St. Louis County, for alleged embezzlement of $10,856 of county funds. The instructions to the jury, given by Circuit Judge Wurdemann, before whom the case was tried at Clayton, upheld the defense's contention that the State had failed to prove the funds alleged to have been misappropriated were actually county funds.

Only three witnesses were heard and much of their testimony was kept out of the record on objection to it as hearsay. The witnesses were Henry Kirchner, who succeeded Willecken as Circuit Clerk in January, 1923; John Berthold, Chief Deputy Clerk for 15 years; and C. F. Mayer, one of the State auditors, who reported officially an apparent shortage of $11,558 in Willecken's accounts.

Willecken, who did not take the stand, has contended the apparent shortage was due to errors in book-keeping rather than criminal misappropriation. His attorney, former State Senator A. E. J. Gardner, argued that, instead of Willecken being indebted to the county, the county owes Willecken.

Trial of the case began yesterday at 9:30 a. m. and ended at 3 p. m. # Veiled Prophet Puts a Day Between Parade and Ball

After Many Years He Decides on a Way to Relieve His Followers of Tired Feet.

The life of the Veiled Prophet, of the Minor Prophets, or Propheteers, or whatever his masked followers are called, will be much easier next autumn than it has been in past Octobers.

They will have two nights for the work which, in previous years, they have had to crowd into one wearying, sole-bistering period between sunset and sunrise.

This autumn, it has been announced, the Prophet's parade will be given Tuesday night, Oct. 7, and the ball in the Coliseum will be held the following night, Wednesday, the eighth. Last year, and in previous years, they were on the same night.

Purpose of the Change.

An announcement says that the purpose of this change is to extend the carnival spirit over a longer period. That is a good reason, but it may not be the only one. The business men who put on the show every year, and who perform in it, may have thought of other reasons.

Under the one-night plan, the Prophet's followers have been required to be on their feet some after 5 p. m. in costume and mask, and have had to clown it on the long ride over the streets, from the Union Station neighborhood to Grand boulevard, east to Broadway and back to the Coliseum. And this was only the beginning.

After the arrival in the Coliseum, which would be at about 10 p. m., there was time for only a hurried lunch, and then the markers must enter the ballroom and join with the reception committee in a grand march, after which the ceremony of the Queen's coronation. An instructed verdict of not guilty was returned yesterday at the trial of Arthur D. Willecken, former Circuit Clerk of St. Louis County, for alleged embezzlement of $10,856 of county funds. The instructions to the jury, given by Circuit Judge Wurdemann, before whom the case was tried at Clayton, upheld the defense's contention that the State had failed to prove the funds alleged to have been misappropriated were actually county funds.

Only three witnesses were heard and much of their testimony was kept out of the record on objection to it as hearsay. The witnesses were Henry Kirchner, who succeeded Willecken as Circuit Clerk in January, 1923; John Berthold, Chief Deputy Clerk for 15 years; and C. F. Mayer, one of the State auditors, who reported officially an apparent shortage of $11,558 in Willecken's accounts.

Willecken, who did not take the stand, has contended the apparent shortage was due to errors in book-keeping rather than criminal misappropriation. His attorney, former State Senator A. E. J. Gardner, argued that, instead of Willecken being indebted to the county, the county owes Willecken.

Trial of the case began yesterday at 9:30 a. m. and ended at 3 p. m. There was time for only a hurried lunch, and then the markers must enter the ballroom and join with the reception committee in a grand march, after which the ceremony of the Queen's coronation. # ATTORNEY LOSES ANNULMENT SUIT

Judge Dismisses Petition of Crouch and Condemns His Actions.

The petition of Joseph C. Crouch, an attorney at 1411A Market street, for annulment of his marriage, June 22, 1923, to Mrs. Bertha Eno Crouch, a music teacher, of 2515A Corn. avenue, was dismissed by Circuit Judge Wurdemann at Clayton today. As has been told, the marriage took place four days after Crouch divorced his first wife and 20 days after Mrs. Eno had divorced her first husband in a case in which Crouch represented her as attorney.

Crouch's actions were condemned by Judge Wurdemann in a statement from the bench, made as he announced his denial of the petition.

If Judge McElhinney, who granted the divorce to Mrs. Eno, had known of her engagement to you at the time he would not have granted the decree," Judge Wurdemann said. "Had I known of the relationship I would not have granted a divorce."

"I don't think you did the right thing as a lawyer in not presenting all the facts. As a lawyer you should have known better."

Crouch attempted an explanation, but was silenced when the court remarked: "I don't want to hear any more about it; the petition will be denied."

Crouch based his petition for annulment on the allegation that Mrs. Crouch perpetrated a fraud by presenting an unidentified man

TWO WATERWORKS ITEMS APPROVED

Citizens' Committee Agrees to $2,350,000 Appropriations for Plant.

The Citizens' Supervisory Bond Issue Committee yesterday approved two ordinances appropriating $2,350,000 out of the $12,000,000 authorized in the bond issue for the building of the new waterworks.

One of the proposed ordinances appropriated $2,150,000 for the purchase and installation of nine miles of steel pipe, 5 feet in diameter, from the site of the new waterworks at Howard's Bend, in St. Louis County, to the city limits. The other ordinance appropriates $200,000 for construction of dikes in the Missouri River near the site of the new waterworks plant.

The subcommittee on Public Utilities, after a meeting with Water Commissioner Wall on the proposed ordinances recommended approval.

Would Seek Advice.

Chairman Carter of the general committee remarked: "As a business man, if I was going to expend $2,350,000 on a project, I would seek all the expert advice I could get and not rely on the judgment alone of engineers in the water department. President Egan of the Union Electric Co., in a letter to me last week, claims that in building the waterworks."

"We authorize the money for expert advice on the building of the $1,000,000 power plant and don't seek advice on a $12,000,000 proposition."

Ernest W. Stix, a member of the subcommittee on Public Utilities, said: "I have absolute confidence in Water Commissioner Wall's judgment and competency as an engineer. He has been in the Water Department more than 20 years and I don't think there is anyone in the city more competent to advise us on waterworks problems."

Commissioner Wall stated that his department had been working since 1912 on the plans for the new waterworks and that the Engineers' Club of St. Louis had approved his report on the project, which had been printed and published and sent out all over the country to engineers. He said if the committee wanted to employ a consulting engineer and pay him $25,000 to make an independent report he had no objection, except that it would delay the construction of the plant, which ought to be completed by 1926, in order to keep up with the increased consumption of water.

Electric Power Is Urged.

Two weeks ago, after President Egan of the United Electric told the committee that if electric power, instead of steam, was used at the new waterworks, the city could save $1,500,000 in the construction of the plant, the committee voted to request the Engineers' Club of St. Louis to send the names of several engineers to advise the committee on the proposition. The Engineers' Club has not submitted the names.

Commissioner Wall states that saving in the construction, if electric equipment is used, would be about $1,000,000, which would be more than offset by the increased cost of the purchase of electric current as compared to the cost of generating it by steam.

When the motion was put to approve the proposed ordinances all the members of the committee voted in favor of approving except Harry Scullin, who stated he had not received sufficient information upon which to base judgment. "I am not going to vote for anything in the future unless I know more about the measure," he said. "We don't mean anything anyhow."

INSPECTION FEE PROVIDED IN BILL FOR HOME OIL BURNERS

Committee Takes Under Advice Measure Calling for Regulation of Machines.

The aldermanic Public Safety Committee yesterday took under advisement a bill regulating installation of oil burners in dwellings and providing that an inspection fee of $3 be paid for each burner installed. The Safety Council, Chamber of Commerce, Fire Prevention Bureau and the oil burner manufacturers are supporting the measure.

William Capen, president of the Oil Burners Association, said the proposed ordinance would protect the public and the manufacturer from a dealer who would not properly install the burner, which might cause loss of life or damage to property and also injure the conscientious manufacturer of oil burners by slowing up his business because of the lack of confidence in oil burner equipment caused by improper installation.

George Madison, representing the Fire Prevention Bureau, told the committee there has been 13 fires since Oct. 31 attributed by the Fire Department to oil-burner equipment.

Cuban Officers Buy Horses Here. Maj. L. A. Beltran and Capt. J. A. Llanos, Cuban army officers, are in St. Louis to buy 1000 horses and mules for the military forces of their country. The work of selecting the horses and mules will begin early next week and the two officers expect to remain here more than a month in completing the task. They are at Hotel Statian.

FRENCH WOMAN TELLS

HOW TO

GET THIN

Without Diets, Abused Creams, Exercises or Reducing Girdles.I reduced my own weight 30 pounds in less than 1 week, and at the same time marvelously improved my general health and appearance with a new French discovery called SAN-GRI-NA. To-day I look act and feel far younger than my real age.
From the results in my own case, and those of my friends, I am absolutely convinced that any man or woman burdened with rolls of ugly, injurious, unwholesome fat, can take it off easily, quickly and safely with SAN-GRI-NA. Every day science discovers something new. SAN-GRI-NA is one of the latest French discoveries for the reduction of excess fat.
It does away with weakening dieting,
some exercises—torturing garments, and abundant and expensive so-called reducing creams. It is used extensively in Paris, where women of so-called pride take pride in keeping their figures slender and graceful, and where the men desire a heavy waistline or double chin. No matter how fat you are, or what you have done in the past to reduce, you must remember that SAN-GRI-NA has never been offered before to the American public.
IT IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS—does not contain any dangerous drugs, and cannot possibly affect your stomach or your health. By simply taking two small tablets before each meal
I lost 30 pounds in two months, and I haven't regained a pound since. I eat as I want and enjoy the best of health. You can do the same. To-day go to any drug store, ask for a package of SAN-GRI-NA. Do not accept anything else, as it is the only thing I ever found to do what I wanted. SAN-GRI-NA is now sold at any of the following stores:
Shaw, Draper Drug Store, Endeavor Drug Store, Judge & Ralph Drug Store or Otto's Drug Store.

ely in late editions of yesterday's Post-Dispatch, meeting the demands of holders of $6,500,000
Suburban bonds for immediate pay-

the United Railways Reorganization Committee today.
A meeting is planned today wherein J. K. Newman, in charge of the reorganization, will confer with the committee representing Suburban bondholders. It is regarded as unlikely that the Subur-

Oral Agreement Reached.

Negotiations working toward the purchase of the bus line have been in progress for more than a month and an oral agreement was reached last week. The written contract is being prepared and the only phases of it, which have not been decided upon, are the time and amount of payments.The profit which will accrue to John Hertz of Chicago, E. F.
Simms of Houston, Tex., and J. L.
Rhino of New York, owners of the bus line, is approximately $475,000. The majority of this will go to Hertz, Rhino and Simms will receive $120,000. This division of the profits has resulted in a split between the Simms-Rhino faction and Hertz. However, it will not hold up the deal.The bus company has 70,000 shares of stock outstanding. Of this 35,000 shares are Class A, or virtual preferred stock. They were sold at $50 per share when put on the market more than a year ago and are entitled to earn $5 per year and one-half of all profits over that amount. The remaining 35,000 shares are Class B, or virtual common stock, of which 21,- 000 shares are held by Hertz and 14,000 by Rhino and Simms.
These shares were voted to the organizers of the company in recognition of their efforts in forming the system. They share in one-half of profits after $5 has been paid on each Class A share.Holders of Class A stock will receive $60 per share under the contract of sale. This includes a $5 payment for a dividend of the past year which was not paid, and an additional $5 payment. The total expenditure in acquiring Class A stock is $2,100,000.Offer of $200,000 for Class B, to which Hertz has agreed. His agreement resulted in the drawing of the contract and the opposition of Rhino and Simms is no longer material.The bus company has approximately $1,500,000 of property in buses and other physical assets,
as well as a large sum of money in its treasury. This money will be turned over to the reorganization committee of the United Railways
when the transfer is completed.The effect of the sale will remove the element of competition from the local transportation system and co-ordinate the bus and street car lines. Profits of the bus lines, over a return on the investment in the future, will go to the treasury of the United Railways to be applied to maintenance of a low fare rate in accordance with the service-at-cost plan which it is proposed to adopt.No statement was available relative to the time when the buses would begin operation in co-ordination with the street car system.
Members of the reorganization committee have stated repeatedly in the past that the buses would be developed under United Railways control.

Boy Has Leg Crushed by Train.

Herman Dugo, 11 years old, son of Leo Dugo, 4225 Flyer avenue, suffered a crushed left leg while trying to climb between the engine and tender of a moving Missouri Pacific freight train at 4 p. m. yesterday. At the Parker-Russell crossover, the boy was taken to city hospital, where physicians said his leg would have to be amputated. Witnesses said the train was proceeding northward, and the boy, not seeing the crossing, climbed on the coupler in an effort to cross. As he did so, his leg was caught between the coupler and block and crushed.

CROPS BIG DESPITE LABOR SHORTAGE

Survey Shows Arkansas Farmers Are Producing Bigger Yield Each Year.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—With an annual shortage of farm labor and thousands of tenants and share croppers leaving the farm every year, Arkansas farmers are interested in an announcement by the Department of Agriculture that a survey conducted by the department shows that although there are fewer farmers, those are producing larger crops and that still larger production can be obtained with a greater use of labor.

The statement says farm labor became about 18 per cent more effective in crop production during the last decade, and although the number of farm workers decreased over 4 per cent in that period, the mass of crop production increased about 13 per cent. The increased efficiency is attributed chiefly to the use of more and better machinery, the time saved by the use of automobiles, and to the fact that farm owners and their families are working harder or longer on account of farm-labor shortage and high wages.

The average crop area per worker in 1920 was given as 23.4 acres, compared with 25.2 acres in 1910, an increase of nearly 17 per cent. The average size of farms has also increased, being 148 acres in 1920, compared with 138 acres in 1910. Grain and hay crops, which are especially machine produced, show a higher rate of increase in acreage from the average of 1907-12 to that of 1917-23 than other crops. It is pointed out. The acreage of all crops increased about 12 per cent, whereas that of grains and hay increased about 14 per cent.

More and better machines are being used, the department says. Two-bottom sulky plows, for example, have in many cases replaced walking rows, and two-row cultivators are being used instead of one-row cultivators. So long as land is more plentiful than labor, high production per worker in the economic objective instead of high production per acre, the department statement declared. To this end farmers are displacing human labor with machinery, it was said.

The automobile, which made possible a saving in human time, was one of the great gifts to the farmer, during the decade, the department says. In 1920 the census found that 1,975,564 farms in the United States had 2,146,362 automobiles. These farms comprised nearly 31 per cent of all farms, but in some sections of the country the percentage of automobile-owning farms was as high as 58 per cent. Approximately 75 per cent of the use of automobiles on farms is for business purposes, the department found.

ARKANSAS BREEDS BETTER HOGS FROM RAZORBACKS

By the Associated Press.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—The pure-bred sire is given credit by Prof. Edgar Martin of the University of Arkansas Experiment Station, for showing marvelous improvement in various types of animals when used with scrub dams, and the use of improved sires to build up grade herds is recommended as a "stepping stone" for farmers contemplating the breeding of pure-bred stock.

"In 1920 the University of Arkansas experiment station purchased three razorback sows which weighed considerably less than 100 pounds each at eleven months, but their offspring from a pure-bred sire were of good type and splendid feeding quality," Prof. Martin said.

"Six years ago," she continued, "the experiment station bought 39 of the poorest scrub cows that could be found on the Kansas City market. These cows had long narrow heads, long thin necks, rough open shoulders, narrow backs and joints, slab sides with no spring of ribs, narrow quarters, and long legs with high flanks. They were exactly the opposite of what one would select for either breeding or fattening qualities."

"These cows were bred to sires from the regular college herd and the experiment station now has two of these second-cross grade steers in the feed lot along with six pure-bred steers, all of the same age and maintained under the same conditions. Compared with the pure-breds these grades make a very creditable showing. Many judge one of these grade steers as the very best in the entire lot in both type and fleshing."

FOUR GENERATIONS CONFIRMED

Bishop Griffin Officially at Ceremony in Jerseyville. Four generations were represented in the class of 200 confirmed last night at St. Francis Xavier's Church, Jerseyville, Ill., by Bishop James A. Griffin of Springfield. The oldest member of the class was George England, 88. His daughter-in-law, Mrs. E. C. England, the grandchildren, Rosamond, Gertrude and Richard Fleming, and two great grandchildren, Grace and Ben Lahey, were also confirmed. Mayor William F. Shephard, Knights of Columbus and city officials escorted Bishop Griffin to the Church of the Holy Ghost on his first official visit to Jerseyville the day before, and the American Legion post decorated the business district with flags.

DAUGHTER HELD SIX JOBS

And When She Married British Vicar Plans to Resign.

PETERBOROUGH, England, May 28.—Rev. John H. Trotter, 78 years old, really cannot continue to manage his vicarage and village of Newborough now that his daughter has married. He will have to resign and has told the Bishop so.

Dr. Trotter's daughter was organist, choirmaster, district visitor, Sunday-school superintendent, deputy sexton and church warden, and the prospect of all these duties falling on to his own shoulders is too much for the aged vicar.

THAMES GIVES UP BODY OF BAILEY,
SLAYER OF WIFE

Major Who Disappeared
Last December After Tragedy Sought in Vain
by Police of World.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON.—One of the mysteries in the famous and baffling case of Major Norman Percival Bailey, who disappeared Dec. 7 last, a few minutes before his young wife was found murdered in bed in their apartment at Hove, England, has been solved. Bailey's body, with a bullet-hole in the skull, has just been found floating in the Thames.

The other mystery—just what happened in the Bailey flat and why—probably never will be solved, because Bailey presumably took the secret with him.

A Big Sensation.

The Bailey case was one of the biggest sensations in English police records in many years and the search for him following discovery of the murder was one of the most thorough ever made by Scotland Yard.

Bailey, who was a young traveling man in the motor accessories business, had a distinguished war record. After his discharge from the army he married Margery Malkin, 28 years old, of Burslem, and they took an apartment at Hove. On the night of Dec. 6 there was a small and quiet party at the Bailey flat. The guests left at 10 o'clock, with the exception of one, a Miss Morgan, who occupied the flat above them, and who remained until midnight, chatting with them. They seemed happy and devoted to each other.

About 8 o'clock next morning the caretaker saw Maj. Bailey, freshly shaved and spruce, as was his habit, come out of the flat with his brief case of papers under his arm and walk down the street. At the corner he turned and went out of sight—and no one ever saw him again.

A few minutes later the caretaker was startled by a cry from the Baileys' maid. They ran into the bedroom and found the bed clothing thrown back and something on the bed covered with a sheet. The young wife had been dead for some hours. There was a bullet hole in her head and a knife five inches long driven to the hilt in her breast. On the floor was a bullet from a service revolver which had been fired on the bed was a note. It read:

"I did not do it for jealousy or cowardice, but just for love. If the police are looking for me they had better look down on the seashore." The search began instantly. A warrant was issued for Bailey and his description was published. But absolutely no clue could be found. When he turned the corner as he went down the street from his home that morning he apparently became invisible.

Series of Messages.

One of the most puzzling features of the case was the series of messages that began to arrive immediately after the murder, indicating that he still was alive and not far away. One was to the servant, including a 10 shilling note for her wages and saying: "I must have gone quite mad this morning and cannot yet wake up. Mrs. Bailey was the world to me. The war has made my nights awful to me for a long time."

Another was to the chief Constable at Hove and read: "I must have been very mad. I had a brainstorm and woke up in the night with war horrors. The next thing I knew I was in London. Tell the Coroner financial matters did not affect me."

A third was to the editor of the Staffordshire Sentinel. Hanley. "Dear Mr. Editor," Bailey wrote. "Just before I go to join my dear Margery I want to ask you to see that we are not wrongly judged. I must have gone completely mad, because my wife was an absolute treasure. . . . I cannot understand my brain."

London hotels were searched, boats were watched, banks were wired to be on the lookout for two checks, which Bailey was known to have with him. The search was particularly keen in the direction of America, because Bailey had visited the United States several times, had friends here and had adopted the American trademark of horn-rimmed glasses. One American returning from England, Carlisle McIntyre of Thermal, Cal., who bore a remarkable resemblance to Bailey, even to a couple of artificial teeth and a scar on the arm, was stopped as he came down a gangplank at New York and questioned three hours before he could convince the police he was not the man wanted.

Conflicting Reports.

As a result of the unprecedented advertising of the case, reports came into Scotland Yard from all quarters. Bailey was said to have been found in an asylum at Luxembourg; a man resembling him was observed in a railway train going toward the coast, carrying his bag with a newspaper at every step; a man believed to have been Bailey booked a room at a Charing Cross hotel on the afternoon of the murder, stayed about an hour, and disappeared. In the room were found an empty brief case, some ammunition for a service revolver and a pad of writing paper, on the first page of which was a letter to the Commissioner of Police, signed

"Norman Bailey," and similar to the one received by the Commissioner through the mail.

But Bailey was not found. Public excitement died down, but the search went on quietly, although without result.

POLICE FIRE SHOTS AT TIRE THIEVES

Men Caught in Act of Unloading Spares, but Escape From Officers.

Two trucks stood at the door of a stable in the rear of 3106 Carr street at 5:30 o'clock this morning and five men were unloading tires attached to rims, when Patrolmen Eckstrand and Talbot of the Carr District came down Twenty-second street, looked into the alley and saw what was going on. They started into the alley to inquire what the five men were doing with all those spares.

The men saw them coming and did not tarry to be questioned.
They scattered and the two policemen took after them. Each fired two shots. The men ducked into passageways and escaped.

The policemen went back to the stable and found 15 tires on rims, part in the stable and part still in the trucks, which apparently had been stolen from automobiles on which they had been carried as spares. The owner of one truck was traced to the 2600 block on Cass avenue and the other to the 2200 block on Howard street, but neither owner was at home.

At 4 o'clock an automobile deposited a young man on the sidewalk at the city hospital and went away. The young man went in and asked treatment for a bullet wound in his left arm. He said he was George Albright, 19, of 2913 Cass avenue, and told how he got the bullet in his arm. He was up early and started to the bakery at 5 o'clock to get some breakfast buns and as he passed Garrison avenue and Montgomery street
there was Al Smith, who lives somewhere on St. Louis avenue, also up early.

"Come here, George, and see my new gun," said Smith and Albright came. "It's a dandy," said Smith and snapped it a few times to show its action. On the fourth snap the thing went off and Albright was shot in the arm. He hailed a man in a passing automobile and asked to be taken to the hospital.
The man took him and that was how it was and he wanted it understood that he hadn't been near the Cass avenue stable and knew nothing about any tires.

As to how it happened that the bullet entered at the back of his arm he was unable to explain.
The policemen came and looked at George. Eckstrand said he looked like the one he shot at, but he couldn't be sure. But Albright is held while the investigation proceeds, with the two trucks and two coats found in them as clues.

"TEX" RICKARD WINS CHOICE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION SEATS

Order of Preference for 2500 Visitors' Tickets Determined By Drawing.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 13.—At a drawing yesterday to determine the order of preference for local recipients of 2500 visitors' tickets to the Democratic National Convention at Madison Square Garden, the name of George L. (Tex) Rickard, the fight promoter, was the first to be picked.

The managing director of the Madison Square Garden Association, thus won the right to choose for the convention the best pair of seats in the place.

Rickard also drew numbers 3 and 4 of the first 10 tickets plucked from a hat by a blindfolded stenographer at the Merchants' Association Assembly Chamber. The drawing was supervised by Stanley
J. Quinn and John R. Young, directors of the local non-partisan national convention committee and newspapermen.

The local allotment of convention seats is being made on the basis of one for each $100 contribution to the fund for financing the convention. On that basis Rickard is entitled to 250 seats, for he contributed $25,000 to the fund. The second pair of seats was drawn by G. A.
Handley of the Cudahy Packing Co.

DUPLICATION CHARGED IN RURAL CHURCHES

Home Mission Funds Wasted in Competition Among Denominations, Minister Declares.

The larger part of the money raised by the principal Protestant denominations for home missions is being expended not for home missions but to establish and maintain churches in rural communities, which already are over-churches, according to an article in the June issue of the Survey Graphic by the Rev. Fred Eastman who resigned last January as Director of Education and Publicity for the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions. His resignation, he announced then, was in protest against the system of financing and expenditures which his article takes up in detail.

The principal cause of what he terms the deplorable multiplication of competitive denominational small churches, he asserts, is the fact that they are financed out of home mission funds which are not devoted to the purpose for which they are contributed.

$4,240,000 a Year. After setting forth that, before giving publicity to the results of his investigation he tried vainly to reform the situation, "from the side," the Rev. Mr. Eastman quotes figures from an audit made to find the amount of home mission funds spent yearly "to perpetuate denominational competition."

The amount thus spent from home mission funds in the rural fields, according to the audit, is about $4,240,000 a year, which goes to not less than 20,000 rural churches.

"I finally resigned," he continued, "feeling that life was too short to spend as an unwilling party to a system which resulted in the last analysis in obtaining money under false pretenses."

The article quotes from a book entitled "The Town and Country Church in the United States," by the Rev. H. N. Morse and Edmund de S. Brunner, as follows:

"One-fifth of all rural churches receive home mission aid. Of these subsidized churches a large number (more than half) are active competitors with other subsidized churches."

"The aiding of small rural churches still occasions from a third to two-thirds of the home mission expenditures of most denominations."

"One-seventh of the aided churches have been receiving home mission subsidy for 20 years or more."

"In general, the aided churches that face the stiffest competition are most energetically promoted and have the most pastoral oversight. Non-competitive fields are apt to be comparatively neglected."

Special Designations. "In the 25 counties studied, 142 of the home mission aided churches were of the leading denominations, such as Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist and Congregationalist. And of these 142, exactly 100 were in competition with other churches of this same general group."

"Let there be no misunderstanding here, the Rev. Mr. Eastman writes. 'If any layman sends to the Board of Home Missions any of the larger denominations a contribution, specifically designating in writing that it shall be used only for a certain mission, or a specific field, his instructions will be honored or the money returned—much, if not all, of the contributions to the women's boards are in this designated class. But the greater bulk of home mission money comes not from the women's organizations, but from the churches through their regular benevolence budgets and is undesignated.'

New Method of Handling Freight.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska.—A new method of handling accumulated freight for lower Yukon River points this spring has been attempted. Freight is hauled here from Anchorage and loaded on river boats ready to move as the ice starts out. By taking advantage of the swift Yukon current, this freight will beat that which is brought to Nome and St. Michael by the steamship Victoria, the first boat into Berings Sea. Freight shipments coming during the winter by boat to Anchorage thence here by railroad amounts to hundreds of tons.

Wait Nine Years to Capture Bear. WHITE SALMON, Wash.—A one-piece fur jacquette is now possible. The lava bear has been captured alive. A Silver Lake trapper, Alfred Andrews, outwitted the animal. The lava bear is a dwarf grizzly. Andrews' specimen is about 2 years old, but is only 19 inches long and 13 inches high. The species was once quite numerous in the sage brush districts of Washington and Oregon and was called desert bear by settlers. The fur pet of the lava bear would just about fit a 25 pound and very little trimming or fitting would be necessary. The captive lava bear will soon be sent east to Prof. Hornaday's menagerie while Andrews continues to stalk other specimens. He waited nine years to nab this desert grizzly.

BALTIC ESTATES GIVEN TO SMALL FARMERS

Esthonia Finances New Holders of Feudal Lands Taken From Barons.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1924. REVAL, Esthonia, May 25.—When six years ago Esthonia won her independence, the new Government seized 1149 estates totaling 6,000,112 acres—$7.9 per cent of the country's total area—which for 700 years had been in the hands of a few hundred Baltic barons of pure German descent. To these barons, until a century ago, the peasants "belonged body and soul." This land has now been distributed among the peasants, townspeople acquainted with agriculture and former soldiers. There are now more than 25,000 small farms where before were the large estates.

Under the agrarian reform law of October, 1919, the Esthonian Government was to have compensated the Baltic barons, whose estates and livestock were expropriated, but thus far there has been found no way of doing so which is acceptable to all political parties. The agrarian party, composed largely of the present holders of this expropriated land, as well as the socialists and communists, is against paying any compensation, whereas the center and right wing parties wish to pay the former landowners at a reasonable rate, but only when Esthonia is financially able to do so.

Financial Aid From Government. As many of the estates had suffered during the war and the new holders were without means in most cases, the Government adopted an agricultural loan system, which enabled the new farmers to borrow money for long terms and at low rates of interest. Last year the Government loaned 135,000,000 Esthonia marks to the new land holders.

On the whole, Esthonia's agriculture is prospering under the new system, whereas under the old feudal system large stretches of fertile land were not under cultivation or were in a deplorable state owing to the absence of interest on the part of the landowners. In some cases, inexperienced city people have been given farms and have made a mess of things, and funds for the improvement of the land have been misused by the village trustees. Those cases are exceptions, however. An American, who has watched the progress of Esthonia since the very beginning, described the evolution of the small Esthonian farms.

"In 1919, when I made my first extensive tour of the country," he said, "there was, as a rule, only a small, weather-beaten farmhouse which was scarcely more than a one-room hut. The next year, a small addition had been built on one side, and the appearance of the old part had been improved by a coat of paint and some repairs. In 1921 one or two more additions had been made to the building, and there were cows, pigs and poultry where the year before there had been none. In 1922 other improvements were made, and some of the more enterprising farmers built silos. And last year many of them tore down the old parts of their buildings and constructed new."

Where the Barons Went. The farmers have a powerful political organization, and at present are making propaganda in favor of being put in complete possession of their lands instead of being merely tenants.

A question often asked is, "What has become of the Baltic Barons?" Some of them were killed during the war and the revolution. Others went to Germany, where they are confidently waiting for the day when they may return to their "rittergut" and rule over the peasants like Kings. In the meantime, they are carrying on a vigorous propaganda campaign against the new Baltic states by means of periodicals and pamphlets.

The third and last group of Baltic Barons has remained in the cities, where they still own properties not affected by the land reform law. Some of these have even taken out their first papers to become Esthonian citizens. The land reform law, however, not only dispossessed the Baltic Barons; it seized all agricultural property owned by other aliens, including three Americans and several French and British subjects. One American indirectly interested in this law is a leader of the democratic party. Few of these cases have been settled.

OUTLOOK IN MISSOURI FOR COMMON LABORER IMPROVED

Road Construction and Farm Work Bright Spots in Summer's Prospects, Report Ascertains.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Road construction and farm activities have brightened considerably the outlook for the common laborer market in Missouri this summer. The Labor Department Employment Service announced today.

"The industrial situation in St. Louis," the announcement said, "continues favorable, although a slackening of employment was noted during May in automobile plants, flour mills, and textile and shoe factories. Building operations are employing many tradesmen and a number of projects included the $7,000,000 bond issue, adopted a year ago, are now actually under way.

"Weather conditions retarded farm activities to some extent, but the demand for agricultural labor is now very heavy. There is a steady demand for common labor for road construction work, but there is an apparent surplus of male and female clerical help."

Throughout the State meat packing and other leading industries, excepting railroads, flour mills and lead and zinc mining, are employing normal forces, the announcement continued. The demand for farm help is strong, although the present supply seems adequate.

A surplus of railroad workers was reported from Kansas City, St. Joseph, Hannibal and Springfield.

ECNC OF FRANKS MURDER CASE IN NEW JERSEY TOWN

Six Boys Lured Smaller Lad Into Woods for $10 Ransom; Victim Is Cruelly Treated.

By Leased Wire to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The Franks murder case in Chicago had a weak and pitiful echo in East Orange, N. J., Wednesday night when six little boys lured a still smaller one into the woods and cruelly beat him with "ransom" in view.

Instead of $10,000, the boys demanded $10. In place of the mature cruelty of the Franks murder, the 14-year-old minds could think of nothing further than biting and kicking their victim.

"A juvenile effort to duplicate the notorious exploits of Leopold and Loeb," Judge Edward L. Strauss branded the story when Mrs. Aurelia Liard, a storekeeper of 141 Tremont avenue, East Orange, told him yesterday of the attack on her 8-year-old son, Joseph.

A fractured jaw and missing tooth made it difficult for the boy to tell his story yesterday. However from vague information supplied by him the police were able to arrest three boys thought implicated and three more are being sought.

Late yesterday afternoon one of the boys held, William Arenas, 14, admitted, according to the police, that he had taken part in the attack. He was removed to the juvenile court in Newark for arraignment.

LOS ANGELES, June 12.—Mrs. Margaret Willis, recently convicted of the trunk murder of Dr. Benjamin Baldwin, formerly of Denver, yesterday was sentenced to life imprisonment in San Quentin prison. Her attorney filed affidavits that a woman juror had been browbeaten into voting for a verdict of guilty.

The defense, in giving notice of appeal, made a motion for a new trial had been overruled, also filed an affidavit charging that a Deputy Sheriff had delivered evidence to the jury room without a court order, contrary to law.

Power House Workers Return When Discharge Threatens.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 12.—Faced with a threat by the employers to dismiss all who remained on strike after midnight last night, the workers in the London power stations have returned to duty, ending the walkout which for some days crippled the electric transportation lines of the city. One of the main factors in the failure of the movement was the opposition of the National Union of Railwaysmen, which declared its intention of fighting the unofficial strikers to the finish.

Some of the railroad shopmen remain out, but it is believed their return is imminent.

FRANCE DAILY ABSORBING LABOR FROM ABROAD
Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
PARIS, May 27.—France is in the fortunate position of having no unemployment problem to wrestle with. Not only is she able to provide work for her native population, but she is daily absorbing labor from abroad. Thus, for the week ending April 12, the immigration authorities report the entry into France of 4581 foreign workmen, exclusive of 1087 farm workers who arrived from abroad. These immigrants were divided as follows: Belgians, 584; Spanish, 289; Italians, 2618; Portuguese, 390; Poles, 29; other nationalities, 101. Of the industrial workers, 1932 were destined for the liberated regions, where, of course, quite a large section of France's own working class population finds employment just now.

55 HIGH VOTE OF HYDE FOR VICE PRESIDENCY

His Backers, However, Hung On Tenaciously, Holding Name Before Convention.

By CURTIS A. BETTS, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
CLEVELAND, June 13.—Even in the 1924 Republican national convention where there was not the slightest reason for the Missouri delegation to do anything out of the ordinary, it maintained the reputation established in 1920 and hunted around for something to do to attract attention.

The Hyde-for-Vice-President boom amounted to just about as much as was anticipated by the general run of political observers. If not fully as much as the Governor expected. The highest number of votes polled by him was on the first ballot when he received 55, of which 36 were from Missouri. The remainder were scattered a few here and a few there.

The Governor's candidacy was in much the same condition as the candidacies of Senator Curtis of Kansas, Brigadier-General Hines and several others. The only difference was that after the first ballot most of the others, who received only a home or small scattering vote, made no effort to remain in the race.

Not so with the Hyde following. It hung on tenaciously as though it expected some strange whim of fate to sweep votes into the Hyde column. On the second ballot the only Hyde votes were the 36 from Missouri. Three of the Missouri delegates refused to vote for the Governor on any of the ballots. They were Charles Hertenstein and Frank M. Slater and Robert T. Scott, a negro, all of St. Louis. Two of them voted for Senator Watson of Indiana and one for Charles G. Dawes.

Even when it was apparent on the second ballot that former Gov. Lowden of Illinois had received a majority of the votes and had won the nomination, and when delegates from nearly every state were clamoring for recognition to change their votes from other candidates to Lowden, Missouri remained quiet. Conrad Mann, the chairman of the delegation, was importuned by delegates from other states to get Missouri with the winner, but Joseph Thompson, the Governor's secretary, and others counselled wait awhile, and wait he did.

Whether the Missourians were taking what then appeared a long chance that Lowden would reject the nomination is not known. Even if there was such an idea, there was no reason to believe from the voting after two ballots that Hyde would be any stronger on a third ballot. He had lost all outside support on the second. The failure to go to Lowden was not calculated to draw support from the Lowden following. If Lowden should decline the nomination, the politics of the action is not explainable.

Vote on Third Ballot.
When Lowden did refuse and when the third ballot was taken in the evening, even then Missouri was not to do the usual thing. It was apparent from the beginning of the third ballot that there were only two candidates in the race, Charles G. Dawes and Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, and with few exceptions the delegates went either to one or the other or were divided between them. When Missouri was called, well down on the list, Mann announced the delegation was ready to vote. He asked that the State be passed. It was called again after all other states had been called.

It might have been expected that the full vote would then have gone to Dawes, as the votes he had were more than sufficient to nominate him. But it was not. Dawes received 22 1/2, Hoover 15 1/2, Coleman Dupont 1. The half votes were accounted for by the fact that from the Fifteenth Congressional District there were four delegates, each with one-half vote, instead of only two delegates, as from the other districts.

The Hoover votes were cast by the delegates who were more closely aligned with the Governor, while the Dawes votes were by the delegates antagonistic to the Governor or only half-heartedly supporting him.

comotive shops of the Lackawanna Railroad, in this city, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingsland, N. J., have been started on a five-day-a-week working schedule. It was announced today by President W. H. Truesdale. Truesdale, on his way to New

Conditions CHEX Slogan Contest

Any person (except employees of the Pioneer Products Co.) can compete for the CheX Slogan Prize. Slogans must be plainly, legibly written in good English, by hand or typewriter. Correct spelling, punctuation and neatness will be entitled to enter into the consideration of the judges. The slogan best suited for advertising purposes, in the opinion of the judges, will be awarded first prize. The second best, the second prize, etc. Any answer entitled to one of the prizes becomes the undisputed property of the makers of CheX. A CheX wrapper may accompany each answer submitted to indicate that contestant is familiar with the virtues of CheX, the Deodorant, Healing Skin-Beautifying Soap. Full name and address must be written on same paper as Slogan. Mail to PIONEER PRODUCTS CO., Room 204, Post-Dispatch Bldg., St. Louis, Mo., not later than midnight July 1.

How To Win:

Purchase CheX to take the place of ordinary toilet and bath soaps—(drug and department stores sell CheX). Use it a few days, then you will know what a super necessity it is. You will know how much more delightful it is to use than ordinary soap. Then solve the Rebus Puzzle and write a sentence telling what you like CheX.

You can compete in the Slogan Contest, sending the answer to the Rebus Puzzle, if desired. Mail separately if you enter both contests. Each box of CheX contains one pamphlet describing the uses and qualities of CheX. You may get some good idea by reading it. Remember! A simple, catchy idea may afford the best Slogan, and you have 30 prizes to compete for. The local judges will pass on all answers and award prizes, which will be paid by The Pioneer Products Co.

COOLIDGE RUSHES BONUS DESPITE LACK OF FUNDS

Orders Head of Veterans' Bureau to Provide Funds to Expedite Army and Navy Departments' Tasks

OPPOSES DELAY TILL CONGRESS CONVENES

Essential, He Says, That Applications Be Placed in Hands of Veterans at Earliest Time Possible.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 12.—Directors for administration of the bonus law, despite the failure of Congress to appropriate funds, were given today by President Coolidge in orders to the Government heads affected. Directors Hines of the Veterans Bureau was instructed to apportion his appropriation for salaries and expenses during the fiscal year 1925 so as to make available for the first six months, commencing July 1, amounts for the administration of the law to be used by the War and Navy departments.

In a letter today to Secretary Weeks, recalling that the bonus became a law over his protest, the President said:

"I am not willing, however, to let the administration of this law remain practically in abeyance until Congress again convenes simply because I would be justified under existing conditions in so doing."

No Delay Warranted.

He added that the law, in his opinion, imposed certain obligations upon the executive branch of the Government, "which do not permit of delay in performance." "If this law is to be carried into effect," the letter continued, "so as to permit of the cash payments being made within a reasonable time after March 1, 1925, as contemplated by it, and if the other provisions of the law are to be given reasonably prompt administrative action, it is essential that the application forms and instructions pertaining thereto be placed in the hands of the veterans and dependents without delay."

"Arrangements have previously been made for the printing of these forms and they are now ready for distribution. It is equally as essential that when the completed applications are received from the beneficiaries of the law they may be given the administrative action which the law prescribes. Otherwise, your department will become the storehouse of millions of applications which can receive little or no attention until Congress convenes next December and makes an appropriation of the funds necessary to give them administrative action. The same situation, though to a modified degree, will obtain in the Navy Department."

Additional Personnel Provided.

Action already has been taken to give you sufficient additional personnel with which to distribute the application and instruction forms and to meet the administrative action which will be required on the completed applications which may be received from the beneficiaries of the law during the remainder of this fiscal year. This leaves for consideration the matter of meeting the administrative requirements of the law for the first six months of the next fiscal year which involves not only your department, but the Navy Department and the United States Veterans' Bureau. To meet this requirement I am today instructing the director of the Veterans' Bureau to apportion his appropriation for salaries and expenses and his appropriation for printing and binding, fiscal year 1925, so as to make available for the six months commencing July 1, 1924, the following amounts for the administration of the World War Adjusted Compensation act, namely: War Department, salaries and expenses, $1,500,000; and printing and binding, $14,000; Navy Department, salaries and expenses, $250,000; and printing and binding, $7500.

Minimum Requisitions Urged.
"Your requisition for personnel, supplies and equipment, and printing and binding, will be forwarded to the director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, who will honor them to the extent of the amount herein mentioned. It is my desire that your requisitions be kept to a minimum consistent with efficient and proper administration and that, so far as possible, your requirements for printing and equipment be obtained from the surplus stocks of the General Supply Committee, and from any available War Department stocks. I am today advising the Secretary of the Navy of the arrangements set forth in this letter."

PAROLE ASKED FOR MAN IN SWINDLE NOT YET IN PRISON

Friends of Edward F. Klein, Former Coal Company Official, Call on Acting Governor.

CONVICTED OF PART IN SHORT WEIGHT PLOT

Was Sentenced to 2 Years for Scheme to Defraud City—Rehearing Motion Is Filed.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, June 13.—
Efforts are being made by attorneys and friends of Edwin F. Klein, former treasurer of the St. Louis Coal and Mining Co., to arrange for his parole before he serves a day of the two-year penitentiary sentence imposed on him in October, 1933, for his part in an alleged conspiracy to obtain money by false pretenses by selling short weight coal to the City Water Department of St. Louis.
Division No. 2 of the Supreme Court on June 5 affirmed the prison sentence, and yesterday, before the mandate had been passed to the lower court, a delegation visited Acting Gov. Lloyd with the request that he order a parole.
Lloyd would not say today what action he would take, but indicated that he would not approve the request.

Motion for Rehearing.
Failing to get immediate action from Lloyd, Klein's attorneys today filed in the Supreme Court a motion for rehearing.

Klein was originally indicted with his father, Fred W. Klein, president of the company, and weight clerk at Bismell's Point water plant. It was alleged they conspired with Rosenheim whereby he would record overweights and received in payment $25 a month and $1 a ton on each ton overweight. Rosenheim was sentenced to serve two years in prison in April, 1932, and on April 7 his sentence was affirmed and he is now in the penitentiary.
Charges against the elder Klein
have been dismissed.

Petitions Submitted.
Lloyd said today he could not recall the identity of the men who asked for Klein's parole. They brought with them petitions said to contain the signatures of many St. Louisans, and a detailed record of the case.

A movement for the parole of Rosenheim is said to be under way in St. Louis. Water Department officials charged that the city was defrauded of a total of $9000 by the conspiracy, and when the charges against the elder Klein
were dismissed it was stated that a settlement of $7000 had been made.

In their motion for a rehearing
before the Supreme Court, Klein's attorneys asserted that the evidence submitted in his trial showed that the money was paid to the corporation and that there was no evidence to indicate that Klein was personally guilty of any crime.

VISITING AUTO DRIVERS MUST HAVE HOME-TOWN LICENSES

Otherwise They Will Be Fined Under
the St. Louis Ordinance, Police Judge Announces.

Police Judge Matthews announced today that persons not living in St. Louis, and thereby exempt from having a city automobile license, would have to show a license from the municipality in which they lived, or he would fine them if they were arrested in St.
Louis in the future.

His decision was prompted by a charge of failing to have a city license, brought against William Steinmeyer of Ferguson. Stein-meyer contended he was a resident of another municipality and did not need a St. Louis license, but when asked if he had a Ferguson license, he replied he didn't. The policeman who had arrested Stein-meyer failed to appear, so Matthews dismissed the case for want of prosecution.

He then announced that persons living outside the city limits, but driving in the city every day,
would be compelled to either purchase a local license or a license of the municipality in which they resided. Otherwise they would hereafter be fined under the St. Louis ordinance.

Claims Bounty for Killing Wolves.
William Wildschutz, farmer, residing three miles West of Fern-tell, St. Charles County, came to St. Charles yesterday and claimed two $10 bounties from County Clerk Sandfort for grey wolf scalps he shot earlier in the week. Wildschutz said the wolves have been killing his chickens and pigs and after considerable effort he traced down two of a pack and shot them with a rifle in the woods-pasture near his barn.

FIGHT FOR DAWES

Furious Work Done for Him on Floor—Delegates' Resentment at New England Dictation Shown

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., June 13.—It's Coolidge and Dawes—Cautious Calvin Coolidge and "Hell and Maria" Dawes—a ticket utterly unforeseen by the Coolidge managers, as to its latter half, when the convention opened here last Tuesday.

When the convention last night, gloomy and groggy from the shock of Frank O. Lowden's refusal to take the nomination for the vice presidency, turned in sheer desperation to the Chicago banker and former national budget director, Brigadier-General Charles G. Dawes, it inflicted damage on the William M. Butler machine that will be hard to repair.

The convention went directly against the orders of the boss, Senator Borah of Idaho having refused to be dragged into the race as Coolidge's partner, and former Gov. Lowden having rejected the nomination. Butler decided that Secretary of Commerce Hoover, whatever Hoover's own wishes might be, should be put on the ticket.

Resentment Was Growing.
Butler so ordered. This was in the fateful interim between the session which nominated Lowden and the night session. It was a time of growing resentment against the delegates were taking stock of the situation, and the party had been subjected to the bungling tactics of the convention management in permitting the nomination of Lowden, when it was known in advance, through repeated statements by Lowden, that he would not accept. Even greater was the dissatisfaction caused by the new regime's blundering (worse than blundering, some said) in the Borah affair.

The form of Lowden, Hoover and Borah to take the nomination, it was said, was permeating the public mind with thoughts highly detrimental to Calvin Coolidge's chances of election. In other words, the Republican vice presidential nomination was assuming the aspect of a lemon. Butler was blamed for this condition.

Moreover, there was widespread dissatisfaction with the whole course pursued by Butler during the convention. His ruthlessness toward the fallen old guard was resented. There was no great sympathy for Lowden, but the committee pursued by Butler during the convention. His ruthlessness toward the fallen old guard was resented. There was no great sympathy for Lowden, but the committee pursued by Butler during the convention.

Two or three times a revolt had been threatened, as when the Michigan delegates came within an ace of refusing Charles B. Warren a place on the Resolutions Committee, of which Butler had slated him to be chairman.

Order Comes Late From Slump.
So the order from Butler that Herbert Hoover should be nominated for the vice presidency, decided the convention in a disgruntled state of mind. Even so, the situation could have been saved by better tactics. The order came too late. It was not until a very little while before the night balloting began that the word was passed out to go down the line for Hoover.

Some of the Missourians said they didn't know what Butler wanted until C. Bascom Slemp, the President's secretary, on a hastily worded telegram, gave them the message about 10 minutes before the roll call. The result might have been different if Butler had given the word sooner, or even despite its lateness, if he had had a floor manager looking out for his interests.

The convention had recessed after President Coolidge was nominated yesterday afternoon, following the 1924 vote to 34 for La Follette and 10 for Johnson—and reconvened at 4:15 to ballot for the vice

COOLIDGE'S MESSAGE OF CONGRATULATION TO HIS RUNNING MATE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—IMMEDIATELY after the radio told him of Brigadier-General Dawes' nomination for Vice President, President Coolidge addressed this message to the General at Marietta, O.: "It will be a pleasure to be associated with you in the public service. Best wishes to you and Mrs. Dawes, in which Mrs. Dawes joins."

The President sat before his radio set, which was placed on a table and moved from room to room according to his desires, and heard the roll call of states on the third ballot for Vice President. With him were Mrs. Coolidge, Edward T. Clark, his private secretary; Lieutenant-Commander Joel T. Boone, physician attached to the Mayflower.

When Lowden had been nominated and his letter of declination read, the convention recessed at 7:21 to permit communication with Lowden. It was called to order again at 9:50 and adjourned after the nomination of Dawes, at 10:45.

While Butler was pondering the problem of the vice presidency and holding futile conferences on the subject, the night session began. Senator Davis A. Reed of Pennsylvania and others of the senatorial group on the floor were very active. Seeing no evidence that Butler was doing anything to keep a bad situation from growing worse, they decided to take matters into their own hands. Somebody had to be chosen for the nomination. They picked Dawes and set about working up sentiment for him. Reed did especially effective work.

During the turmoil before the balloting, Reed and Butler held a short, sharp conference. Butler said that Hoover had been chosen for the nomination.

"You are too late," said Reed. "It will be Dawes on the first ballot." Dawes it was.

For a time it looked as if the Butler machine had been tinkered back to the efficiency with which it had operated to get the presidential nomination for Coolidge. Alabama, first state on the list, gave its 14 votes for Hoover; Arkansas gave 14 and California 29. Many in the crowd believed that it was all over but the shouting. Dawes votes, however, were being picked up here and there, and when Illinois plumped 53 into his lap the contest took on a different aspect.

Dawes forged ahead, but Hoover stock made a recovery when Massachusetts threw its solid 29 votes to the Cabinet man. This action by the home state of the President and Butler served ample notice that Butler had decided upon Hoover.

States Fall Into Line.
The issue, however, was soon poked beyond all doubt. State after state plumped for Dawes.

Dawes' Varied Career as Banker, Soldier and Reparations Expert

His Early Political Work Was for McKinley and as Associate of Mark Hanna—First Director of Budget.

"Hell and Maria" Dawes is successful. No other adjective so well describes his career. In each venture he has attempted—in law, in finance, in the army, in Government, in international affairs, in politics, in literature, music and profanity—he has attained a degree of proficiency and recognition which few specialists in any one of them acquire.

Dawes does not like to be reminded he was once a General—most recent success was his work as chairman of the Committee of Reparation Experts which evolved the program to which Europe looks for reconstruction. To that work Dawes brought undeniable gifts of energy, knowledge and determination. He also brought his vocabulary and his pipe—the pipe with which he shocked the guests at a French banquet and the vocabulary with which he shocked an American congressional committee.

Charles G. Dawes was born in Marietta, O., Aug. 27, 1865, the son of Brigadier-General Rufus R. Dawes, commander of the Iron Brigade of Wisconsin during the Civil War. In 1887 he began the practice of law in Lincoln, Neb., and soon became one of the leading attorneys for public utility companies in that State.

Later he became actively interested in some of these companies in the West, especially gas plants. He was president of the Northwestern Gas, Light and Coke Co. of Evansville, Ill., which later merged with the People's Gas, Light and Coke Co., supplying Chicago.

Organizes Bank.
Then he turned to banking and founded the Central Trust Co. of Chicago in 1902. He is still chairman of the board.

Dawes first attracted national attention in politics when he persuaded the Illinois Republican delegation to support McKinley in 1896. He was made Comptroller of the Currency the next year, the youngest man that ever held the job. During the World War, he became Brigadier-General and was general purchasing agent for the American Expeditionary Forces and as member of the Military Board of Allied Supply, for which he was decorated by both France and the United States. He also served on the liquidation commission for a few months after the war and then returned to America.

He was considered a possible Cabinet officer under President Harding. Instead he became first director of the budget, resigning after he had prepared the first budget.

Associate of Mark Hanna.
In politics before he was chiefly known as a member of the of the defeated vice presidential candidates took the platform and endorsed the nominee as a brave soldier, a distinguished patriot, a man whose advice was "accepted around the world and a man that the party might safely follow in the campaign. Watson labored hard to stir the crowd to enthusiasm, but he got only a perfunctory response. The delegates were tired

'CHARLEY, IT'S UP TO YOU!'
SAYS BROTHER; 'WELL, I DECLARE!' EXCLAIMS DAWES

By the Associated Press.

MARIETTA, O., June 13.—When the Republican national convention was going through the roll call on the vice presidency, Brigadier-General Charles G. Dawes was "listening in" on the proceedings at the family homestead here. When the Associated Press notified him of his nomination Gen. Dawes was already aware of it.

"Charley," said his brother, Henry M. Dawes, Comptroller of the Currency, "it's up to you again."

"Well, I declare!" exclaimed "Charley," the man of "Hell and Maria" fame.

Dawes came to Marietta, his native town, Monday, to attend the fortieth annual reunion of his class in Marietta College, where he was graduated in 1884. Gen. Dawes will depart today for Chicago.

The nomination came as a surprise to Gen. Dawes and his relatives. He knew he had been mentioned in connection with the office but had no idea he would be nominated. At Chicago, his home, Dawes will make preliminary plans for the campaign.

and wanted to get back to his hotel or waiting trains. Wisconsin declined to let the election be made unanimous.

Various Senators were recognized to present resolutions. Thus the crowd got a look at Pepper of Pennsylvania, Wadsworth of New York, Reed of Pennsylvania and Spencer of Missouri, who was entrusted with the task of introducing a resolution thanking the officers of the convention.

Monroe could hardly make himself heard, when he put a motion for adjournment. The few who happened to be listening chorused a joyful "aye" and the convention of 1924 had passed into history.

Now that the show is all over it seems a long way back to the session which nominated Lowden. On the first ballot Lowden, the favorite of the National Committee, received 222 votes. Kenyon 172, Watson 79, Dawes 149, Curtis 55, Burton 139, Hyde 35, Hines 32.

Burton Vote a Surprise.
Kenyon, who had developed the strength that his friends hoped for, nor did Curtis. The big surprise was the size of the total given Congressman Burton of Ohio, the keynote speaker. New York gave him 38 and Ohio 35. Pennsylvania kept its real intentions dark by casting 79 votes for Congressman Graham of that State. Wisconsin gave Senator Norris 27 votes. On the second ballot there was such a drift to Burton that it seemed he had been slated for the nomination. He was being used partly as a screen to hide behind and partly as a means of heading off Kenyon, but so large was his total on the second ballot that he might have gone on to victory, after the reading of the Lowden declination, if the voting had proceeded without a break. Massachusetts gave him 33 votes, and when Pennsylvania plumped 74, many in the crowd thought that the break had come. Illinois, however, headed off the movement with 60 for Lowden, and then came a quick turn.

Senator Wadsworth of New York shouted, "New York changes to 1 for Burton and 86 for Lowden." That was the signal for tumultuous applause. A parade was started. A dozen delegation spokesmen vied with one another to be among the first to switch votes to Lowden. Indiana changed 33 from Watson to Lowden, and Pennsylvania changed its 78 from Burton to Lowden.

Votes were still being switched to Lowden amid great confusion when Senator Willis, shouting at the top of his lungs, moved that the nomination be made unanimous. Wisconsin's "no" prevented this action.

Lowden's Letter Read.
Then began a series of conferences on the platform. The leaders were troubled looks. After 20 minutes, Chairman Mondell explained to the convention that an undated letter had reached him—a letter to be read in the event of Lowden's nomination. It is Lowden's letter of declination.

The convention was stunned by the announcement. Out of a confusion of suggestions came a proposal that the convention recess till 10 o'clock—an hour and a half later. This was adopted.

On reassembling the delegates learned that Lowden's letter, in reply, responding to a telegram from Chairman Mondell, again had declined the nomination. There was nothing left for the convention to do but buckle down to the job of naming somebody else. The gloom was thick. Butler's ineptitude killed off Hoover. Thus Dawes became the nominee of the party to run with Coolidge.

Issue Between Big Business
And the Masses if Democrats Name Progressives, Says Bryan
With Coolidge and Dawes the Ticket, Representing Reactionary Element, He Finds Promise of Clean Cut Campaign.

By WILLIAM J. BRYAN, CLEVELAND.

June 13.—The sessions of the Republican convention were so close together that it will be necessary to include in this final article the platform, the nomination of the President and the nomination of the Vice President.

The platform fight was very one-sided but of very great importance. The minority report offered by Congressman Henry A. Cooper of Wisconsin, is the only live wire product that comes out of the convention and will be read more carefully, and with greater effect, than the majority platform. Cooper was really the hero of the convention. He is a man, 73 years old, has been in Congress for about 24 years, and is one of the most highly respected men in public life.

He is intelligent, honest, an indefatigable worker, and is in evidence a high type of American citizen. He was at ease and moved and spoke with an air of confidence that is only possible when one is sure of his ground and dead in earnest.

When Charles B. Warren of Michigan, chairman of the Resolutions Committee, read the majority report, the audience followed him as best they could, but there was little in the platform to arouse enthusiasm. It was the kind of a platform which might be expected when one remembers that it is intended to prevent the discussion of issues instead of focusing attention upon them. There is not a plank in it that constitutes a challenge to the opposition or raises a question of vital interest.

What Platform Calls For.
The foreign relations plank endorsed the Permanent Court of International Justice, as recommended by President Coolidge. This declaration was accompanied by the statement that the Government has definitely refused membership in the League of Nations. The foreign relations plank is quite a long one; it points with pride to the Washington arms conference and to the success of the Dawes Commission. It advocates the calling of a conference for further limitation of arms, but it does not deal with the general question of preventing war by investigation of all disputes which are not subject to arbitration. The platform takes the usual party position on the tariff, praises agriculture and labor, without announcing any specific remedies, avoids the bonus question, devotes 22 words to the guarantees of civil, political and religious liberty contained in the Constitution, briefly commits the party to the enforcement of the Constitution and all laws, and appeals to the country for the election of a Republican President and Vice President with a Senate and House made up of men and women who believe in the Republican principles, acknowledge party responsibility and who can be relied upon to keep faith with the people by carrying out the platform.

The contrast between the soothing language of the majority report and the direct, incisive and emphatic indictment of present conditions by the minority report is very marked. The Wisconsin proclamation points out the evils that need to be remedied and certain reforms that are offered for the relief of the masses. The plank denouncing monopoly and profiteering and drawing a contrast between the increasing dividends collected by big business and the bankruptcy of the farmers will be read with interest throughout the agricultural sections between now and November. Not all of the remedies proposed will meet with equal favor, but they will be considered and will produce a profound impression on a multitude of voters.

Audience Listened to Cooper.
The convention officials treated Congressman Cooper with great deference and courtesy, although the time allowed for such an important discussion was ridiculously short. The audience, while the strictest attention; they could not help admiring the brave man who led Wisconsin's little band against its almost unnumbered foes.

Texas has inscribed her memorial to the men killed at the Alamo. The impressive words "Thermopylae had her messenger of defeat—the Alamo had none." Politically the butchering of 23 delegates from Wisconsin was complete as far as this convention is concerned, but the bravery of those who made the sacrifice for a great cause will be remembered—they did not fight in vain.

Burton's Nominating Speech.
The nomination of President Coolidge had been discounted so far in advance that it was impossible to let up any great excitement. When the formality of naming him actually took place, Dr. Burton, president of Michigan University, was chosen to present President Coolidge's name. He is a lifelong friend and an enterer upon his task with evident relief. He is a speaker of unusual ability, epigrammatic in language, pleasing in delivery and with a vein of humor—qualities which are sufficient to make him a popular orator.

As a eulogy his speech could not have been better; as a nominating speech it had two defects. First it was too long; not any part of it lacked interest but it is difficult to sustain interest at its maximum for so long a time except in the arguing of a question. Praise becomes monotonous after all the pleasant adjectives are used, whereas ideas are fresh and hold the attention.

Humor Out of Place.
The second defect was the injection of humor into the speech. His humor is refined and delightful but it was out of place in such a speech as he was called upon to make. The selection of a President is a serious affair, and especially serious at this time.

President Harding went into office on a post-war wave, and by a reactionary administration lost in two years practically all of the party advantage gained in 1919 and 1920. Then came the President's tragic death and the inauguration of President Coolidge. His administration has been even more reactionary than President Harding's and the party is confronted by such a revolt as has seldom been known. Concentration of wealth, the real cause of political disturbance in Europe, is proceeding in this country at a pace more rapid than ever known before. Political corruption and corruption of Government, due to enormous campaign funds, have started the country.

The platform ignores the grievances of the people and the President's sponsor offered him merely as a personality with no reform in mind. It is admirable and with no sympathetic connection with the struggling masses; and he did it with a touch of levity that is out of harmony with the solemnity of the occasion. He feeds the intellect with suppositions, phrases while the heart of the nation hungers for assurance that its sufferings is to be relieved.

Little Feeling in Demonstration.
The demonstration that followed Dr. Burton's speech must have been disappointing, both to the speaker and to the friends of the candidate. It lasted less than 15 minutes. Compare this with the record demonstrations in other conventions, even when the nomination was a foregone conclusion, and it will be seen that there was little warmth of feeling. The delegates stood up but most of them quit cheering in a very few minutes and watched the efforts which a minority made to prolong the demonstration.

Character is not sufficient in politics; it is admirable and exciting, but it is not all that is required. It is desirable that all people should have character—the higher the better, but appropriate action is also demanded.

A fireman for instance cannot rely on character; he must help to put out fires. So with the President. The masses need to be protected from the greed of the predatory interests and no one can give them that protection unless he is one of them in sympathy and shares their thoughts and aspirations.

President Coolidge has a fundamental bias on the side of Big Business as shown by his endorsement of Mr. Mellon's plans, and this bias prevents his doing the things that the common people desire.

Senator La Follette's 34 delegates stayed with him to the end. They voted "No" on the motion to make the nomination unanimous. Chairman Mondell rose to the occasion and announced that except for a few negative votes the motion was carried unanimously.

The convention had hard work finding anyone willing to run for the Vice Presidency. One of the humorists remarks that he can now understand why they speak of Vice President as a running mate. Borah was talked of but it was found that he would not accept, and reported declinations came in as each new candidate was proposed.

On the second ballot former Gov. Lowden was nominated in spite of his irrevocable declination not to be a candidate. In view of the un-

"WHATEVER IT ENTAILS," DAWES
WILL DO HIS BEST

Republican Vice Presidential Nominee Addresses 5000 of Friends From Porch at Marietta, O.

THEY WAIT 2 HOURS FOR HIM TO APPEAR

He Speaks Briefly to Crowd, Saying He Did Not Expect Nomination at Cleveland.

By the Associated Press.

MARIETTA, O., June 13.—Charles E. Dawes, in his first public address since he was nominated by the Republicans as their vice presidential candidate, told 5000 of his friends and neighbors today that "I have gratefully accepted this nomination, resolved that whatever it entails, I will do my best."

At 4:30 p. m. today Dawes will take a train for Chicago. He has been here a week attending commencement activities of Marietta College from which he was graduated in 1884.

Crowds Gather at Old Home.
Marietta, where Dawes was born, has long looked upon him as its most famous representative, and no time was lost today in preparing to pay him honor. Shortly before noon crowds began to surround the old Dawes homestead where the nominee has been staying. By 2 o'clock, when he stepped out on the porch, probably 5000 were lined up to hear him "make a speech."

The "speech" consisted of about 1200 words and he wound up by saying that "this is no time or occasion for speech-making." He said:

"It is a great honor to have my dear friends at Marietta irrespective of party gather here on my father's old home. Almost from the founding of the town, the first settlement in the territory northwest of the Ohio River, my people have lived here and I claim a part of the pride you have for old Marietta, its traditions, its present enterprises and its fine prospects."

"I Will Do My Best."
"You have read the happenings at the Republican convention and you will easily understand that I did not expect this nomination, but it has come and I have gratefully accepted it, resolved that, whatever it entails, I will do my best."

"This is no time or occasion for speech-making. I want only to thank you and all my dear friends of Marietta again for your kindness in coming."

certainly the convention adjourned at 9 o'clock, when it was compelled to accept a renewed declination. The third ballot started in with a spirited race between Brigadier-General Dawes and Secretary Hoover. Judge Kenyon and Senator Watson falling behind.

Before the roll was completed, Gen. Dawes secured such a lead that there was a move to make his nomination very marked. Judge Kenyon would have been of much greater aid to the ticket because he has a larger following among the progressive Republicans—really the largest following that any man has among those who count themselves as progressive Republicans. Senator La Follette's following is larger, but a considerable portion of that is outside of the Republican party. Secretary Hoover's nomination would have been offensive to the Johnson Republicans, especially in California, where Hoover tried to defeat Johnson four years ago.

Gen. Dawes is probably as strong a man as could have been selected among the conservative Republicans. He is a man of the highest character, a man of large business experience, and has a public record that can be emphasized. The service rendered by him on the budget commission was conspicuous and even more conspicuous was his service in adjusting the dispute between Germany and France.

With Coolidge and Dawes running on the Republican ticket we have the promise of a clean campaign, and as they both represent the reactionary element in politics, the issue will be a clear-cut issue between big business on the one side and the masses of the people on the other, provided the Democrats nominate progressives on their ticket.

UNEMPLOYED WANT STATE TO AID THEM

Petitions Being Circulated Asking for Amendment to Constitution.

The office of the Associated Industries of Missouri, 1306 Boatmen's Bank Building, has issued a statement calling attention to petitions which, it states, are being circulated, for an amendment to the State Constitution, requiring the State to furnish work to the unemployed, or pay them pensions.

A sufficient number of signatures should be obtained, it is stated, this proposal would be placed on the ballot, to be submitted to the voters of the State at the November election. The proposed amendment, it is stated, is in this language:

"In protecting the rights of the people to employ their own labor, the State shall establish and conduct such farms, factories, workshops or other means of employment, as may be necessary to provide work to every person applying therefor. If the State should fail to furnish the employment provided for herein to any person applying therefor, the State shall pay, in lieu thereof, temporarily, a sum adequate for the support of said person and his legal dependents, until said person shall find employment."

The Associated Industries calls attention to this proposal for the purpose of opposing it. It is opposing also what it terms "the radical workmen's compensation act, sponsored by organized labor."

88 CHILDREN RECEIVED BY AID SOCIETY DURING MAY

Separation of Parents Most Frequent Cause for Reference of Children.

Separation of parents was the most frequent cause given for referring 88 children for care and supervision to the Children's Aid Society during May.

In 21 cases the parents were separated, 17 children were half orphans, 16 were deserted by one of the parents and only one child coming to the attention of the Children's Aid was a full orphan, both father and mother being dead. Illegitimacy was the next highest factor, bringing seven children to the society's attention.

The other causes making necessary the care and supervision of this child-placing agency are: Pauperism, illegitimacy, income, conduct, immorality, father in prison and parents reunited.

The home finding department of the Children's Aid in placing the children made use of 16 boarding homes already known to the society, and nine new supervised boarding homes. One free home was used. The Children's Aid Society received 74 applications for children, but only 21 were placed in May.

Two hundred and eighty-two children came under the direct supervision of the Children's Aid and received service in varying degrees under the following situations: In boarding homes, 151; in free homes, 29; in wage homes, 3; free with mother in domestic service, 5; supervision, 20; institution, 10; Protestant Orphans' Home, 3; given minor service, 60.

In addition, the Children's Aid give supervision to 26 mother-Turkey children. These are placed in the hospital during the past month for various children's ailments. The giving of 4169 boarding days and 1254 free days of care to 221 children may necessitate 1006 visits by members of the staff of the Children's Aid Society to the homes and in behalf of children.

Daily Mirror of Washington

By CLINTON W. GILBERT.

THERE is a saying that "the man who doesn't know when he is licked never is licked," which is going to be tried out in this campaign. It always seemed to me one of those whistling-to-keep-your-courage-up apothegms of practical philosophy, of doubtful value. William G. McAdoo is the man who is going to show this time whether it is true or not. Mr. McAdoo is the sort of man who never knows when he is beaten. It is constitutionally impossible for him to see those dark possibilities which almost every one else sees when he looks at the future as it relates to himself. There is a blind spot in his eyes which makes him unable to see uncertainties. I wrote critically of him when the facts came out about his acceptance of Mr. Doherty's retainer, and though his success in the Democratic primaries has not changed my estimate of that transaction, I am bound to say that no bolder facing of ruin and defeat than his since that disclosure is to be found in the history of politics. Three months ago he was wrecked, and today he will just fall short of winning the Democratic nomination for the presidency.

When the Doherty story was told he called his friends together and asked what he should do. Most of them, including his financial backers, told him to retire from the Democratic contest. They qualified before the angry look with which he received this advice and to some of them he has hardly spoken since. Mr. Doherty gathered together his political supporters and they told him to go on, mostly because they did not dare to say anything else to his face. That was not the only reason. Some of them were committed to him and thought it dangerous to them in their own states to change candidates at that day. They felt that for trading purposes he would do better than another. But generally, they were half afraid to face his anger and half carried away by his confidence. It is amusing to see him with his campaign managers. Generally, a campaign manager acts as important in the presence of his candidate as a midwife does exhibiting a baby as a wife who has just come into the world, and his candidate looks as red and helpless as the baby. Mr. McAdoo's campaign managers act in his presence as if they thought they ought to be conveying his bags and his overcoat. The campaign manager of Mr. McAdoo is a curious kind of ego which is blind to doubts or questions. I think this perhaps includes moral questions.

G. O. P. PLATFORM REPUDIATES OLD GUARD OF SENATE

World Court Plank Is Final Act of Humiliation Performed on Lodge by Coolidge.

MELLON APPROVED PLANK ON TAXES

Declaration Against Insurgency Gives President a Club to Hold Over Republicans in Congress.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World
CLEVELAND, O., June 12.—Politically speaking, Senators Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, James E. Watson of Indiana and George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania were carried out of the Republican convention on a stretcher.

What happened to this distinguished triumvirate, representing about all that is left of the Old Guard, is the outstanding feature of the platform, which was being read and understood for the first time yesterday by most of the delegates who had voted for it the night before.

The plank in the platform approving the World Court is the last word in the repudiation of the leadership of Lodge and completes the final humiliation of him by the nominees.

Regardless of the qualifying and denatured references to the League of Nations, handed out as a consolation wafer to the irreconcilables, the World Court plank is an indorsement of the Coolidge formula, formerly enunciated by the late President Harding. It leaves nothing to the imagination, suggests no face-saving camouflage to the Senators who have opposed the program for American entrance into the court.

Hughes Policy Upheld.
The plank on the World Court
includes the name of Secretary Hughes in the endorsement list, and enunciates the policy of the State Department as it has been run by the present secretary.

The plank may or may not be interpreted as a positive position on the league. Whatever interpretation is given will depend upon the preconceived opinion of the interpreter.

"This Government has definitely refused membership in the League of Nations and to assume any obligations under the covenant of the league. On this we stand," says the plank.

To this the irreconcilables reply that it is a side-door entrance into the league and to assume the charge of a frank admission.

Failure to mention the Mellon tax plan by name was a concession to the members of Congress who had voted against it. The agility and skill of the platform makers was not equal to the task of presiding the President and the Congressmen simultaneously, so the label
"Mellon" was not attached to the platform declaration. But while not flaunting the Mellon label in front of the recalcitrant Senators and Representatives, the declaration is in line with the statement issued by President Coolidge when he signed the tax bill.

It calls for tax reduction through tax reform. It calls attention to the 100,000,000 people who receive no tax reduction, which means the President and his party platform believe tax reduction should not be confined to those who make income tax returns. The implication is that high taxes are either avoided or passed on, resulting in increased cost of living which must be borne by those who do not pay income taxes directly.

Mellon Approved Tax Plank.
The plank was not the one written by Representative Ogden Mills,
New York's member on the committee, who would have made it stronger than the one adopted. It was approved, however, by Secretary Mellon who had the authority

Wisconsin Sits Tight During Demonstrations

While delegates from other states, on their feet, at the Republican convention at Cleveland, taunted, booed and clapped their hands at them, the delegation from Wisconsin, adherents to Robert M. La Follette, complacently kept their seats and did not enter into the cheering when Theodore Burton and Frank W. Mondell proclaimed the infallibility of the Republican party and the perfect soundness of all its acts. On the left is Robert M. La Follette Jr. Next to him, with back turned, is Gov. Blaine, talking to Sol Levitan.

of the President to pass on this particular declaration.

The anti-Ku Klux Klan plank advocated were dismissed with an empty gesture. The hollow words written into the platform about the guarantee of religious freedom were thrust aside by advocates of the plank. New York delegates in particular condemned the feeble attempt to dodge the issue and predicted that it would cost the party votes in the East and Middle West.
The Ku Klux Klan considers that it won a real victory and everyone here agrees with that.

Indorsement of the Fordney-Mc-Cumber tariff is by indirection.
The plank indorses the general principles of the protective tariff, speaks of the wise provisions of the present law and works up to a grand climax of indorsement by suggesting the inadvisability of disturbing business by a general revision of the tariff. The plank was carefully framed, with one hand extended to the New England protected industries and the other to the exploited farm products of the West.

When it came to dealing with the farm problem, the platform makers walked with the wariness
of a tight-rope walker crossing Niagara Falls. The obituaries of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, defeated in the closing days of Congress, were fresh in the minds of the platform workers. They two, the plank with a general revision of the tariff, the obituaries of Robert M. La Follette and the other upon the farm bloc which threatens to rebel with Wisconsin.
The only concession made to those who demanded a declaration in favor of a constructive policy was contained in the words "We pledge the party to take whatever steps are necessary to bring back a balanced condition between agriculture, industry and labor which was destroyed by the Democratic party."

"Hopeful words," say the administration supporters, and "wheedle-words" retort the militant farm

blowers, who wanted a more specific explanation of the methods to be used in bringing about the Republican promise.

Blow at Irregulars.
The tail end of the platform carries with it a sting which was faintly recognized when the platform was read to the convention.

In effect, it reads the guerrillas out of the party and demands adherence to party discipline. Party responsibility is stressed and the voters are urged to elect a Republican President and members of Congress, "who believe in Republican principles, acknowledge party responsibility, and who can be relied on to keep faith with the people by carrying out the program which the Republican party presents and pledges itself to fulfill."

This innocent looking plank caused a lot of buzzing conversation around the hotel corridors yesterday and the delegates were pondering just what they had let themselves in for by adopting it. It is expected to be a big club in the hands of the President should he be elected, when dealing with his party members in Congress.

By inference, voters are advised to vote against members of Congress who fail to acknowledge "party responsibility."

The prohibition leaders are boasting they have committed the Republican party to the dry issue.
Ralph Beaver, Strasburg, of Pennsylvania believes he scored a victory in preventing any declaration in favor of the Volstead law.
The party is committed neither for or against the modification of the law enforcement act, nor of the prohibition amendment itself.
The party platform stands for law enforcement in an academic manner, treating the wet and dry question with the same airy skill with which the Ku Klux question was dismissed, with a ringing declaration in favor of the Constitution.

$50,000,000 Deal, Which May Mean
Electrification of Penn. R. R.
Reported in East.

By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, Md., June 12.—
The Susquehanna Power Co. has given an option on its projected Catoctin power development on the Susquehanna River to Drexel & Co., Philadelphia bankers, as the first step in a plan to increase the size of the plant, bringing $50,000,- 000 of new capital into Maryland and forecasting the electrification of the Pennsylvania Railroad between Washington and Philadelphia, the Baltimore News says today.

Acquisition of control of the stock of the Susquehanna Power Co. by the Philadelphia bankers is believed in financial circles, the News says, to be a preliminary step to:

Development of a market for hydro-electric power, generated on the Susquehanna River, throughout Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Electrification of the Pennsylvania Railroad between Washington and Philadelphia, as a part of a general plan to electrify the entire system.

The formation of a super-power development covering the entire Eastern part of the United States, which has been fostered by Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

The merger of great numbers of smaller power companies in this section as a part of the super-power plan.

FIND "MILLION-DOLLAR DISTILLERY" IN FACTORY

Dry Agents Estimate Value of Alcohol Seized at Newark, N. J., at $400,000.

By the Associated Press.
NEWARK, N. J., June 12.—Prohibition agents, working out of New York City, under the leadership of Division Chief Romaine Merrick, last night discovered what they describe as a "million-dollar distillery" in a two-story factory building here.

The prohibition chief values the alcohol seized at $400,000. Besides there was the elaborate plant, comprised of a dozen or more stills;
17 vats of 1250 gallons capacity,
150 drums of 50 gallons capacity, and 100 barrels of 50 gallons capacity, all filled.

Painted on the doors of the building is the name "Vaxon Paint and Varnish Co." Eight men were found working in the place, three of whom made their escape. The others were held for a hearing before United States Commissioner Summer. The agents said several of the captives were armed with revolvers.

'Hurry, Hurry,' Last Words Of Crew in Submarine

American Naval Officer Tells of Messages, Relating Brave Struggle of 40 Japanese.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SEATTLE, Wash.—An unofficial but remarkable sea story comes from Japan, where at the bottom of Nagasaki harbor the crew of the doomed submarine fought for life and recorded it to humanity
by means of a floating telephone picked up by a flotilla of rescue boats. There were, in reality, two stories.

One, official, curt and impassive, made public by the Japanese Government, March 19, says:
"Submarine No. 43 collided with warship near Nagasaki this morning and sunk, with loss of 40 officers and men."

The unofficial story, given out by Lieutenant-Commander W. H.
Booth, U. S. N., attached to the Thirteenth Naval District here, and reported by the American naval attache in Japan, overflows with human interest. It relates the story of the thoughts of the dying men hour by hour as brought to the surface by the telephone connection.

The first message came about 4:20 p. m. and the last word heard was at 5:45, when "Hurry, hurry," was heard three times. The log of death, according to the story, is as follows:

"4:20—Motors stopped. Those in engine room retreated to the motor room. About 1 o'clock an explosion forward put out lights.
Salt water and oil running into motor room. Boat inclined to port.

JAZZ OFFICIALLY APPROVED BY GERMAN DANCE MASTERS

Conservative Opposition Overridden When Moderns and Radicals Unite at Convention.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.
CASSEL, Germany, May 24.— Jazz has been finally approved by the German Dancing Teachers' Association despite efforts of the conservatives, who have fought desperately for several years to prevent the old-time waltz from being crowded out.

The radicals within the ranks of the association have been clamoring since 1921 for official recognition of jazz, and at this year's congress of the teachers in Cassel
the moderns and the radicals joined forces and by a big majority gave jazz the official stamp of approval.

STAGE BULL FIGHT IN A PLAY

Mexicans Put on Real Encounter
in "The Wild Cat."

Correspondence of the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, May 29.—A real bull fight featured the recent presentation of Manuel Penella's play
"The Wild Cat," in which such a spectacle is included, although in the United States the encounter took place behind the scenes. A 50 degrees. Oh, how agonizing it is. Please do something as quick as possible.

"4:57—Survivors now number 15.
Lieut. Ogawa talking on phone.
Breathing is difficult. It is just like when climbing up a hill running.

"4:45—The six air purifiers are distributed one to every three men and they are sucking them, by turns. It is pitch dark. With two pocket flash lamps are writing final letters to the world.

"5:35—If floating dock is here
please tow us to the shallow.
"5:56—Lieut. Ogawa talking. I report to commanding officer, men are making utmost efforts, obey-ing orders well, calmly attending to duties. Water coming in, washing our feet. Carbon gas thick, breathing difficult.

"4:40—Is there any chance of our being raised during the day?
Is it daytime or night? We are slowly letting air out of reservoir.
"5:50—One man has just dropped. Now two more. Others are trying to climb to higher places calling to each other, "Oh, Oh."
"5:30—In a strong voice, "Banal!"
was heard three times, then voices,
"Hurry, hurry," faintly through the telephone.

"5:10—Lieut. Ogawa, between breaths, managed to say, "Please do your best for your country, please, please."
"5:45—Some one called, "hurry, hurry," three times and all ended."

gala performance of the show was staged in the bull ring and Antonio Segura, the bull fighter-tenor of the play, acquitted himself creditably when he faced and killed the bull against which he was pitted.
During his youthful days in Sevilla, Segura toyed with the cape and banderillas before he discovered that the stage was a safer and more profitable profession than that of the torador.

NEW SCHOOLS TO STOP NEGRO MIGRATION

Mississippi County Plans to Give Colored Children Opportunity for Education.

CLARKSDALE, Miss.—When the splendid system of white schools in operation, Coahoma County is to embark on untried but promising new for the education of negro children. It is proposed to establish in this county a series of 79 up-to-date, one-teacher negro schools, 15 junior high schools and a central agricultural high school, in all of which Smith-Hughes courses of agricultural instruction will be stressed.

Adoption of a one mill school tax for the next four years, supplemented by additional sums from the State and national Government, the Rosenwald Fund and General Education Board of New York City, will finance the buildings and the cost of maintenance.

At the end of the four-year period the tax can be reduced. Within the past few years the negro population of the county has been forced to face the shortages repeatedly due to the exodus of the negroes to the East. Statistics show that where adequate school facilities have been provided there has been no appreciable decrease in the negro population.

Viewing the system from the standpoint of economy alone is designed to check an unnecessary heavy outlay of money for a growing population of white children brought in by families of negro farmers from the hill sections of the State who were induced to the Delta to aid in meeting the labor shortage. It is estimated that the per capita cost of educating a negro child is approximately $4.00 against $45 for the white child. In 1923 about 3 per cent of the labor in the county was white and this year about 15 per cent white. The number of educated negro children in the county at this time is estimated by the Commissioner of Education to be more than 12,000 against a white population of more than 10,000, or 12 to 1.

It is proposed to teach the primary grades in the one-teacher schools, the grammar grades in the junior highs and the older children in the central school.

NITTI PRACTICALLY AN EXILE, DUE TO FASCIST HOSTILITY

Former Premier Quits Italy but Predicts His Own Return to Work for Peace.

HOME RAIDED BY THE BLACK SHIRTS

Will Sojourn in Switzerland — His Departure Kept Secret From Mussolini's Followers.

The following dispatch, written by a staff correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World, had to be bailed from Italy to London and cubed from there in order to avoid the censorship established by Premier Mussolini: Copyright, 1934, by the Press and Publishing Co., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

NAPLES.—After waiting nearly six months for Premier Mussolini's permission to get a passport, former Premier Nitti sailed from here aboard the French liner Patria.

He is now practically an exile, for Mussolini's henchmen are determined he shall not return while the black shirt rule lasts. Signor Nitti was obliged to use the sea route because the police refused to be responsible for his safety if he crossed Italy by train.

Naples, which was never pro-Fascist, is now distinctly though secretly anti-Fascist and thoroughly sympathizes with Signor Nitti's intolerable position in this country. His home has more than once been raided by Mussolini's black shirts.

Goes to Zurich.

The former Premier will disembark at Marseilles and proceed to Zurich.

"I am cheerful because I know my exile will not last forever," Signor Nitti declared. "I will return and work for the peaceful collaboration of all nations of Europe and also of the United States for prevention of the next war."

"I have ceased to interest myself in Italy's internal politics because it would be a sheer waste of time under present conditions."

"The big Powers are drifting toward war unless they change their policy soon, though I am hopeful pacifist voices will make themselves heard, even in these countries. The United States, too, is becoming more truly pacifist. I hope before long to go there to lecture about the crying need of America's help against future war."

Views on War Debt.

"Reparations and war debts are another point which the United States will one day understand clearly, though Americans often rap me for saying years ago the only way for the United States is to cancel the debts on condition the allies cancel German reparations. Then United States wheat and other products would find markets in Europe; not before, because we are too poor to buy."

"Millard and Lloyd George, both big numbers now, cried me down when at San Remo and other conferences I warned them it was useless to occupy the Ruhr, unless to try to coerce Germany. Today the electors of their respective countries have defeated these men with their policies and gradually all democracies will realize how useless coercion is."

As the Patria slipped out into the sunset only a few knew it was bearing an exile whose last words were:

"I know I will be asked back one day."

HARRY THAW SIGNS RECEIPTS FOR RETURN OF PROPERTY

Total Value of Estate $1,500,000; Mysterious Frank Johnson Claim Not Explained.

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—A mysterious claim of $12,000 "Frank E. Johnson," marked "paid" appeared yesterday in the accounting of the estate of Harry K. Thaw filed in Common Pleas Court by Walther Riddle, Pittsburgh, and Howard Irish, this city, who constituted the committee of the estate while Thaw was confined at the Pennsylvania Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases.

No explanation of the item was in the schedule. The figures of the accounting approximated $200,000, but did not show the real value of Thaw's property, which, made up of several trust funds, is said to total $1,500,000.

Thaw was recently adjudged sane and competent to manage his own affairs by a jury here. Attached to the report of the trustees was a formal affidavit signed by Thaw acknowledging return of the various securities of the estate, and agreeing that the balance of $14,000 be held by the trustees for future disbursements.

Beyond a $7500 counsel fee, no mention of the settlement out of court of the suit brought by Frederick Gump, former Kansas City school boy, whom Thaw was alleged to have whipped in New York in 1917, was in the trustees' report.

Evelyn Nesbit, Thaw's divorced wife, and her son, Russell William Thaw, were not mentioned in the accounting as having received any money from Thaw's estate.

TWO FIRMS IN MISSOURI
OUSTED AND FINED $10,000

Quo Warranto Proceeding by Attorney-General
JEFFERSON CITY, June 12.—
The Missouri Supreme Court today ousted two firms of attorneys and imposed fines of $10,000 each on each of them for violating the anti-trust laws. The firms are the Ash Grove Lime and Portland
Cement company and the Dewey Portland Cement company, both of which are operating in Missouri with headquarters at St. Louis. The action of the court resulted from quo warranto proceedings recently filed against the two firms by Attorney-General Edward S. Gurnea, on charges that they were violating the anti-trust laws by being members of the Norcross Autism and Statistical Bureau, which was recently ousted by the United States Supreme Court for being contrary to the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

EFFICIENCY OF LOCOMOTIVE IS INCREASING, BUILDER SAYS

Speaker Tells American Railway Association Improvement Steadily Continues.
By the Associated Press.
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 12.—
W. H. Winford of the Lima Locomotive Works, Chicago, made a defense of the steam locomotive before the mechanical division of the American Railway Association today.
"During the past few years," he said, "the press has presented to its readers statements conducive to the belief that the modern steam locomotive is rapidly losing its vitality, leaving the impression that the modern steam locomotive is inefficient, that it has reached a stage where it cannot meet practically and economically the traffic conditions of today.
"Nothing could be farther from the fact. The vitality of the steam locomotive is not on the wane. It is increasing. Development has not stopped. It is still in progress.
The possibilities of increased efficiency and capacity guarantee a continuing progress."

in various parts of the State.
To date he is scheduled for addresses in the following places:
Charlottesville, Hannibal, Moberly,
Adella, Booneville, St. Joseph,
Kansas City, Springfield, Joplin, Marion and Chillicothe. He is expected to speak particularly regarding constitutional phases of the Volstead act. As is known, Priest filed for the nomination
after other candidates refrained from announcing a position regarding prohibition, to which he is opposed.

ALASKA SOLON INSPECTS "FARTHEST NORTH" COLLEGE

Recently Completed Mining Department Building Is Fully Equipped, Says Senator Aldrich.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, May 19.—The Alaskan Agricultural College and School of Mines at Fairbanks is an institution "in which every Alaskan may take pride, not only for the reason that it is the farthest north institution of higher learning in the world, but because it is doing a work that is, in itself, of vast benefit to the territory," declared Territorial Senator Frank

A. Aldrich after a visit to the school. "The spirit of the institution's president, Charles E. Bunnell, who frequently puts in 16-hour days to get the college functioning properly, permeates the entire faculty and is to be found prevalent among the student body," said Senator Aldrich. "The deepest desire expressed by President Bunnell was the wish that students from every high school in the territory might enroll in the college, instead of seeking similar institutions in the states. There are 53 students enrolled. The building for the mining department was completed last fall. It is well equipped and the course of instruction includes actual mining operations on the college grounds. A mill has been provided to treat the ore and make chemical assays. Drug Habit Invading Japan. Correspondence of the Associated Press. TOKYO, May 14.—The drug habit evil is invading Japan, according to leading physicians, and is finding many of its victims among theatrical people. It has become known that the recent death of Sumohe Sawamura, one of the leading actors of Japan, was due to narcotic poisoning. Physicians are urging stricter Government and police control of the drug habit, which until recent years has not been serious in this country.

GERMANS ARE OFFENDED BY "MEPHISTO" SONG IN FRENCH

Berlin Critics Recent Action of Georges Baklanoff As Affront to Whole Nation. By the Associated Press. BERLIN, May 27.—Nationalistic musical critics are incensed over the fact that Georges Baklanoff, who is starring as guest in the German Opera House, dared sing the part of Mephisto in French. One critic calls this an unheard of affront to the German people. "If Baklanoff could not sing the part in German, the management ought to have insisted upon producing an entirely different opera. In fact, why produce a work of Gounod at all?"

Electricity Aid to Bees. Correspondence of the Associated Press. GLOUCESTER, England, May 27.—Electricity has assisted bees in producing an increased output of honey, according to an announcement of the Gloucestershire Chamber of Agriculture. A number of beehives were erected in an apiary both lighted and heated by electricity during the winter months, with the result that strong broods of bees started to collect honey much earlier than usual and so obtained supplies from the early blossoms of fruit trees. The output of each hive was thus greatly increased.

JUGO-SLAVIA'S GIRL BANDIT "MARCELLED," NOT BOBBED

Correspondence of the Associated Press. BELGRADE, May 28.—Not bopped but carefully marcelled, Jugo-Slavia's girl bandit has been captured near Brhovo village, together with a half dozen of her band of brigands.

Young and prepossessing, she is known as the "silk woman" because of her extravagance in dress. When arrested she was clothed completely in silk and wore neat little patent leather pumps. Soft-spoken and of quiet demeanor, she is described as enterprising and reckless as any man in her exploits. The police are trying to discover her real name. Her fellow prisoners absolutely decline to divulge it.

Jewelry Store Robbed of $350. Policemen at 5 a. m. today discovered a plate glass window in the jewelry store of W. A. Kaffenberg, 2907 North Newstead avenue, had been broken with a brick. The proprietor said $350 worth of jewelry had been taken.

NIGERIAN NATIVES PROSPER UNDER RULE OF BRITAIN

Governor, in England on Visit, Tells of Contentment and Peace Existing in Tribes.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, May 29.—An example of the benefits of rule by a larger power over an indigent people is found in the case of the British domination in Nigeria, says Sir Hugh Clifford, the Nigerian Governor, who is in England on leave.

The natives of Nigeria for the most part are peaceful and contented and living on a scale of life

they have never known before, Sir Hugh says. The British rule has destroyed the slave trade and stopped tribal warfare, with the result that the people are expending their energies in other and more beneficial directions. They have become good farmers or industrial workers and are capable of operating farms without governmental supervision.

The most noticeable effect of British rule, however, has been in the commerce of the colony. The exports now average nearly $60,000,000 annually, which is 10 times the estimated value for 1913.

The British Government has built thousands of houses in the colony, introduced sanitation, taught the natives handicraft and made them into an industrious and progressive people.

Fuzs Bequeaths Sum to Charity. The will of Louis Fuzs, 85-year-old president of the Regina Flour Mill Co., who died at his home, 1408 East Grand boulevard, on June 2, was filed for probate today. The will leaves $1100 to Catholic charities, $500 to the Catholic Extension Society of Chicago, $5000 to a son, the Rev. Louis J. Fuzs, S. J., and the residue equally divided between his other children—Eugene A. and Firman D. Fuzs, Mrs. Lucile O'Malley, Mrs. William Moore and the heirs of another daughter, Mrs. Rosalie Ring, who recently died.

SIX MONTHS IN JAIL FOR FARMER WHO BEAT WIFE

Sentence Preferable to Cooking Three Meals Daily in Opinion of Prisoner.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. LIBERTY, Mo., June 13.—Six months in the county jail is preferable to cooking three meals a day in the opinion of Elias Shelton, a farmer living near South Liberty. Shelton was sentenced by M. L. Swanner, Justice of the Peace, upon complaint of several persons that Shelton had chosen a public highway as the place for administering a beating to his 15-year-old wife.

According to Mrs. Shelton her husband struck her when she remonstrated with him for abusing their dog, which had leaped from the motor car in which they were riding.

"Thank goodness I won't have to cook three meals a day for a while," was Shelton's only comment upon the court sentence.

Man Injured by Fall. Tony Urban, 34 years old, of 2218 North Eleventh street, fell or jumped out of a second story window at that address, at 4 p. m. yesterday, and then crawled across the street to the home of a neighbor, whom he notified of his accident. He dropped about 18 feet to a concrete paving. Urban was taken to city hospital, where he was said to be suffering from a fractured leg and alcoholism.

Unusual Tales Of Adventure, Tragedy, Mystery, Humor From Real Life

By Robert Welles Ritchie.

THE GOOD HERR DOKTOR

A GREAT many Washington correspondents will remember Dr. Barthelmae of the Cologne Gazette, who used to look out upon the world of American politics through the quarter-inch lenses of his spectacles in a manner wholly Teutonic. Just before the United States entered the World War the good Herr Doktor worked himself into a nasty corner because of his association with Boy-Ed and some other German propagandists and—if I remember rightly—was asked to catch the next steamer out of the country.

This anecdote has to do with the time Dr. Barthelmae ran foul of the Irish down in San Antonio.

It was during the excitement of the mobilization of a division of troops within handy striking distance of the border during the Madero revolution in Mexico. It looked for a while as if those troops might do what Pershing's column did later and cross the line into Mexico. We correspondents sent down to San Antonio to watch developments had a hectic time for a while, what with battles across the Rio Grande and sporadic attempts on the part of irresponsible Mexicans to involve our country in the internecine strife.

So the lobbies of the two hotels troops camped out at Fort Sam down in the Texas city became Houston had received secret orders whispering galleries of rumor and to move, then that this or that wild report. First we'd hear the bridge linking Texas territory with Mexican had been blow up to prevent its possible use by the Americans. Not a night did any of us go to bed without a news source left on the alert to shoot us by wire any and all hot stuff.

In all these vivid days Dr. Barthelmae was as keenly on the job as any of us American newspaper strategists. He showed resource and alertness equal to the best. We liked him.

But Chris Haggerty, irrepressible Irishman, could not permit his regard for the German correspondent to stand in the way of his duty, which was always to follow the dictates of his unquenchable instinct for fun. When April 1 swung around Chris recognized the possibility of the date, if Barthelmae did not.

Near midnight of April Fool's day the German correspondent was routed out of bed by the ringing of the telephone in his room.

"This is the telegraph office," came a voice. "Urgent telegram here for you; but I can't get the sender's name. Sounds German and it came over the wire wrong. Wire from El Paso."

"Yes-yes," burst out Barthelmae. "I know that man in El Paso. What does he say?"

"International bridge between El Paso and Juarez just blown up," the voice quoted. "Gen. Blank in command here has ordered three troops of cavalry to ford the river and take possession of the town."

"Gott!" choked Barthelmae and hung up.

He threw something into his grip, packed his typewriter and tiptoed down to the clerk's office. All quiet there. None of the other correspondents knew the stunning news. Without even awakening the night clerk Barthelmae read the schedule of westward trains on the board there and discovered on the Sunset Limited was due in little less than an hour. Himmel, how he would beat the rest of us fool correspondents!

He was just tiptoeing out to find a taxicab when the apparently sleeping clerk awoke. "A note for you, Doctor," he called. Barthelmae paused impatiently to snatch open the envelope. Inside was a scrawled message:

"Look at the calendar before you start for El Paso."

"A Friend."

The good Herr Doktor scanned the big calendar back of the clerk's desk. He saw the date April 1 ringed with a black pencil mark and then he knew what all this meant.

By this and that Barthelmae discovered Chris Haggerty to be the joker and was all for challenging him to a duel until some of the others of us managed to persuade him duelling was no longer clubby in Texas.

"PA" COOLIDGE LISTENED IN ON SON'S NOMINATION

His Eyes Watered When He Heard the Cheers After Mention of President's Name.

By the Associated Press.

PLYMOUTH, Vt., June 11.—In the simple living room where Calvin Coolidge took the oath of office as President, John Coolidge sat before a radio receiving set yesterday and heard his son nominated at Cleveland. As the cheers which greeted the President's name came to him through the air, the old man's eyes watered, but his nerves were steady and he calmly took out his watch and timed each long round of applause.

"The Colonel," as his neighbors call him, said little. If a visitor dropped in he offered one of the receivers of his head set to the caller and plugged his unoccupied ear with a finger to hear better with the other.

Two or three friends also had head sets and as Chairman Mondell was heard "the Colonel" remarked to them that his voice sounded "just like Cal's." Dr. Marion Leroy Burton in his speech of nomination mentioned some episode of the President's life in Plymouth, the father exclaimed "I wonder how he knew that." In the afternoon Coolidge went out to the roadside to greet 90-year-old E. R. Pike of Waterbury, who said he had voted for Abraham Lincoln "and every Republican President since." The two men talked together and then Pike drove away and Coolidge hurried back to the radio.

Ideal Team, Says Cannon.

DANVILLE, Ill., June 11.—Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes make an ideal team, in the opinion of "Uncle Joe" Cannon, expressed here today. "Both these men have the courage of their convictions and are able to lead the country through the present industrial crisis in safety," he declared.

STILL FOUND ON AN ISLAND

Prohibition Group Chief Scruggs of East St. Louis and several agents reported, upon their return today from a tour of Southern Illinois counties, that they had discovered two stills, one of 200-gallon capacity, on College hill near Cape Girardeau, and one of 200-gallon capacity in Pass hills near Cairo. In each instance were the operators of the stills and a tenant were arrested and released on $1000 bond each by the United States marshal at Cairo.

The stills were seized and titles of mash and new whisky were destroyed.

DEATH THREATS SENT TO MAN WHO CAUGHT SLAYERS
 Police Officer Receives Messages After Sentence of Man Is Affirmed.
 Two cryptic messages, apparently threats of death, composed of words clipped from newspaper headlines and pasted on white paper, were received in the mail yesterday by William L. Bobbitt, a patrolman, who was instrumental in the arrest of Hugh Campbell, sentenced to hang July 13 for the murder of two policemen.

In a holdup of the Morris Packing Co. plant.
 Bobbitt took the envelope to Laclede Avenue Police Station yesterday. One paper bore the message, "Pinkie; kill yours," the other, "Pinkie; die; we kill yours." Both were signed with the clipped words "St. Louis Gangster," and both were received yesterday at the Victor Motor Co., where Bobbitt is employed, he reported.
 Death sentences against Jinkley and Charles G. Merrill, both involved in the Morris holdup, were recently affirmed by the Supreme Court.

KLAN TRIAL JURY CONVICTS 31 OF AFFRAY CHARGE

Not Guilty of Riot, Says Verdict; Court Withholds Sentence When Motion for New Trial Is Made.

STATE READY FOR MURDER HEARING

Judge Grants Motion for Separate Trials on Murder Charges for 31 Defendants.

By the Associated Press.
 EBERSBURG, Pa., June 13.—Samuel Evans of South Fork, indicted in connection with the riot between visiting Ku Klux Klansmen and residents of Lilly, on April 5, during which three of the townspeople were killed, was placed on trial here today on a murder charge, after Judge Thomas P. Finletter had granted a motion for separate trials, Evans pleaded not guilty. The indictment against Evans, an alleged member of the klan, named Frank Misco, of Lilly, as the victim of the fight. Seventeen alleged klansmen and 13 Lilly residents, under similar indictments, will be tried later.

When court opened District Attorney D. P. Welmer moved that the murder and manslaughter indictments against 13 of the original defendants be nolle prossed. These 13 men were acquitted yesterday on riot, affray and unlawful assembly charges. Judge Finletter holding that the evidence against them was insufficient. Defense counsel moved that 11 of the men, alleged klansmen, charged with carrying concealed weapons, be admitted to bail. The court took the motions under consideration.

A jury yesterday found 31 of the defendants guilty of affray and unlawful assembly, but not guilty of riot. Judge Thomas P. Finletter upon motion of the defendants' counsel previously had instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty in the case of 11 alleged klansmen and two Lilly residents sustaining the contention that they had not been sufficiently identified as participants in the affray. The entire 44 had been placed on trial on the charges of riot, affray and unlawful assembly after the court had refused a severance in their cases.

Sentence was not passed pending a motion for a new trial. The District Attorney today was expected to announce his decision as to whether or not the 13 defendants found not guilty by direction of the Court would be tried on the charge of murder and manslaughter. Defense counsel will ask a severance in this trial on this charge, and it is pointed out, under the laws of Pennsylvania they are entitled to separate trials on a murder indictment.

Testimony in the case ended abruptly late yesterday when the defense rested after 15 witnesses had been called in an effort to establish an alibi for the Lilly defendants. No witnesses were called on behalf of the alleged klansmen and the opposing counsel agreed to submit the case to the jury without argument.

Forty-four men were arraigned in the case at the opening of the trial, but the number was reduced to 31 when the Court gave the jury instructions for a verdict of acquittal on behalf of 11 alleged klansmen and two Lilly residents. The verdict was directed upon motion of the defense that not sufficient evidence had been introduced against them.

Passenger Robbed by Negroes
 Henry Westhaus, 1510 North Twenty-third street, jumped off a Wellston street car at Jefferson avenue, yesterday evening, to pursue two negroes who had jostled him on the car, taking his purse and $27. The negroes fled down an alley. He caught one, but not finding the purse or money on the negro released him and chased the second. The latter disappeared.

The empty purse was found later at the mouth of the alley into which the negroes had run.

EDDIE HELD DEFEATED BY ANDERSON IN STATE GOLF TOURNAMENT

Young Medart Eliminates Chris Kenney; Watts and Murray Reach Semifinals

Failure of Held, District and Transmississippi Champion, Big Surprise — Score 3 and 2 — Anderson Meets Murray, Watts vs. Medart.

By J. Roy Stockton.

MIDLAND VALLEY COUNTRY CLUB, June 13.—Donald Anderson of Normadia upset all the form in the Missouri golf tournament this morning when he defeated Eddie Held, district and Trans-Mississippi champion, 3 and 2 in a third round match.

Anderson won the first two holes, was three up after four holes and held his lead all the way.

Anderson this afternoon will play Walter Murray of Forest Park, municipal champion, in a semifinal match.

In the other semifinal, William Medart will play Lawson Watts. Medart defeated the veteran Chris Kenney, 1 and 2, while Watts, shooting brilliantly, put off Vincent Nettler of Midland alley, 7 up and 5.

Murray qualified for the semifinals by beating Stuart Stickney. The cards of the Held-Anderson match follow:

Third Round Results
William S. Medart defeated Chris Kenney, 4 up and 3.

Lawson Watts defeated Vincent Nettler, 7 and 5.

Walter Murray defeated Stuart Stickney, 1 up.

Donald Anderson, Normadia, defeated Eddie Held, 3 and 2.

Kenney Defeated Medart.

Chris Kenney of Sunset Hill, veteran of many a golf battle, went on a rampage yesterday. The former state and district champion went out in the rain and sleep in the first round of the Missouri golf championship and gave Scott Gardner of Triple A a sound trimming, 6 and 5. It was taken for granted that Kenney was too strong for Gardner and that the latter, footing had handicapped the Triple A shooter.

Then in the afternoon this same Kenney, Muscatine, and companion that it was a good day for anything but golf, took Champion Jimmy Manion out for a game and handed him a neat thrashing, 4 and 2. By this time the paddling jumping followers of the tournament were beginning to take interest and it was discovered that Kenney in the morning, needed three times for a 72 and that in the afternoon four on 17 and 14 would have brought him home with another 72.

Kenney's Stock Rises.
The two excellent rounds boosted Kenney's stock in the title competition and many of the railbirds expect Chris to reach the final. The card in the Manion-Kenney match follows:

Kenney—Out . . . 544 434 435—38
Manion—Out . . . 445 544 444—38
Kenney—In . . . 544 445 345—38
Manion—In . . . 544 445 345—38

The other big surprise of the day came when Walter "Pope" Murray, youthful Municipal Links champion, defeated Clarence Wolff.

Wolff was two up at the turn, but his putter failed him on the last nine and when Murray ran down an approach from off the green on the thirteenth hole it did not help Wolff's morale. Clarence was shooting brilliantly except for his putting.

Casey and the Strife.
Joe Casey lost a heart-breaker to Stuart Stickney. The Normadia gruffer was one down going to No. 18, but he put his machine down on the green, 19 feet from the cup. Stickney, playing safe, was just off in two and had a four-footer for his four. Casey missed his three and Stickney eased his four, but Casey, with an easy putt for a win, found himself hopelessly stymied and had to take five and shake hands.

It is probable that the strife was the subject of some heated conversation when the Caseys and the Walshes got together last night. The strife certainly seems to be an unfair thing when it boils up as it did in the Stickney-Casey match.

Yesterday's Results.
Championship (First Round).
William S. Medart, Triple A, defeated Dr. L. N. Chiles, Normadia, 6 and 5.

Chris Kenney, Sunset, defeated W. Scott Gardner, Triple A, 6 and 5.

Eight Crews in Olympic Tryout

Yale's Unbeaten Eight to Compete Today—Ten Entered in Singles Event.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 13.—Oarsmen from many sections of the country will match strokes on the Schuylkill River today in the final tryouts for the American Olympic team.

Sisler Has Batted to .327 Average Against Southpaws

Browns' Manager Has Hit Only .310 Facing Right-Handers, Giving Him Mark of .315 for Season—Johnson Has Won Seven of Ten Games for Nationals.

By the Associated Press.

When George Harold Sisler, baseball's most valuable player for the season of 1922, was forced out of the national pastime in 1923 because of sinus trouble, there were many who figured that his brilliant career was at an end. Sisler in 1922 paced the batters in the major leagues with an average of .419.

Sisler this spring has not hit within 100 points of his 1922 standard, but what he has done has convinced all that he has "come back." In the first 47 games of the season, Sisler has batted to an average of .315, with 62 safeties in 197 trips to the plate.

Further proof that the Browns' manager has come back is evinced by the fact that he has swatted better against left-handed pitchers than against the right-handers. Sisler, a southpaw batter, has faced a sidewheeler 52 times and has pounded out 52 safeties for a .327 mark. Against right-handers, Sisler has made 45 hits in 145 trips, an average of .310.

Stopped by Southpaws Four Times. In only four of the 16 games in which Sisler has faced a left-hander this season has he gone without a safety. On April 27, Sherrod Smith of the Indians stopped him; on May 1, he was held by the Athletics; on May 11, he was held by the Athletics; and on May 11, he was held by the Athletics.

While the Browns' leader has made this mark against left-handed fingers, he has gone without a safety in 12 of the 21 contests in which he has been called upon to face a right-hander.

Unsuccessful Against Daisies. George Dais, the curve ball star of the Tigers, has stopped the Browns' manager on two occasions, performing the trick April 19 and again on May 4. Stoner, Tiger rookie, hit him Jones, Howard Rhams, Rip Collins, Zahner, Lyons and Murray are some of the others who have set the Browns' leader down without a hit.

Once this year, Sisler made four safeties while in six contests he made three hits. In 19 other battles he made two.

Which is a fairly good record for a player who from October of 1921 until the spring training trip did not face any left pitching.

Johnson Has 7-3 Record. Among those here with the Nationals is Walter Johnson, the "fireball king," and the possessor of 104 shutout victories during his long service with the Washington club. Although this is Johnson's eighteenth campaign with the club, he manages to win his share of the games, as attested by his record which shows seven victories against three defeats, a winning percentage of .700 with a club that has won 59 games.

Johnson's best hurling feature of the campaign came on May 23, when he blanked the White Sox with one safety. In this game he struck out 14 batters, the season's record. He has struck out 62 batters in 32 innings, an average of almost seven a game. In addition to shutting out the White Sox, the right-hander has stopped the Athletics and Tigers without a run.

In the 52 rounds Johnson has labored this season, the opposition has been able to score only 25 runs at an average of 2.79 a game. He has been found for 62 hits and has walked 25 men. In six of the clashes in which he has appeared

POLICE RESERVES AT RINGSIDE AS CHAMPION LEWIS THROWS LONDOS

Four Patrols Summoned as Near-Riot Impends During Wrestling "Championship"

Bout Is Halted After Each Had Won a Fall, Pending Arrival of Reinforcements—Presence of Police Head President, Chief of Detectives, and Captains Averts Disorder.

By Dent McSkimming.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

M. Lewis, champion, met Jimmy Londos in another "world's championship" wrestling match at St. Louis University Field, last night. The result was the same—with even more fireworks than heretofore. Lewis won two out of three falls in one hour and 20 minutes of wrestling.

Someone in authority "anticipating a riot and sent in a call for police reserves. The main event was held up 15 minutes between the second and third falls awaiting the arrival of these reinforcements. They arrived in four police patrols and the near riot arrived shortly thereafter. In addition to a score of police and plain clothes men, there were at the ringside the president of the Police Board, Philip H. Brockman, Chief of Detectives Hosland, lieutenants and captains.

At the conclusion of the main event, which was brought about when Lewis clamped a flying headlock on Londos for the third fall, the crowd was in fever heat and wild-eyed, young men, mostly of seamy complexion, swooped into the ring and rushed the referee, who was in a manner which indicated that a real fight might develop.

Police Escort Champion. The police took charge and escorted Lewis and his manager and the referee to the dressing room, just as they have been escorted in previous shows here. No one was hurt and no arrests were made. The crowd had expected its thrill, the promoters and contestants had collected their money—the entertainment was over.

As the match went, Lewis, continuing his efforts to defeat Londos, who was on a defensive series of headlocks thrown in, played the role of "villain," a piece made popular by Renato Gardini. Londos, who looked the part of an untrained novice against Wladek Zyzanski two weeks ago, rose to great heights, somehow, last night, when he found Lewis' left arm poked out invitingly he slapped on the wing-lock and appeared to be the aggressor all the way.

It was a wing-lock that won the first fall for Londos after 24 minutes and 37 seconds. It was the wing-lock that put Lewis into the ropes several times in the third fall period.

Ferocity Appears Stimulated. The match was made to appear rough but there was no blood spilled. There was much shoving about but it was done in a spectacular and not a dangerous manner. Heads were butted, always while quite close together so that there was no force behind the blows. But to some of the spectators it appeared that nothing short of torture was being inflicted on both sides.

Lewis took 40 minutes and 35 seconds to gain the second fall with a headlock and the third fall required 10 minutes.

It was in the third that the bout grew most interesting. Londos clamped so many wing locks on Lewis that it appeared that the champion was quite helpless. All the while Lewis was at the ropes and then Jimmy shoved the bigger man into or under or lifted him over the ropes. The referee then was forced by the rules to "break" them and order them to the center. Jimmy refrained from applying these locks in the middle of the ring. He threw Lewis about as he would a medicine ball—and the crowd grew purple in the face.

Lewis Leaps to Victory. Then came the climax. Londos had Lewis in the ropes, seemingly out, as usual, when the referee stopped Jimmy. Londos repeated the referee's interference and while the two were arguing, Lewis leaped a distance of light or 10 feet, caught Londos about the head and slapped him to the floor.

It may be essential to note that Londos' shoulders were not both touching the canvas when Referee Levin called Lewis the winner. That did not seem to worry Londos or his associate, Promoter Tom Packs, but it did excite the fans to such a demonstration that the principals seemed in real danger of attack. But the police, provided as a "happy" forethought, quelled the disturbance.

High, St. Louis Boy, Is Hitting .340 for Robins

Has Also Improved Greatly in Fielding Since Being Moved to Second Base.

By Thomas S. Rice.
Baseball Editor Brooklyn Eagle.

BROOKLYN, June 13.—When the Dodgers were in St. Louis last month, they won three of four from the Cardinals, who had just finished winning four straight from the Giants. On form the Cardinals meet an even stronger Brooklyn team in Brooklyn than they met in St. Louis. Andy High, the St. Louis native son, who was shifted from the bench to second base this year, after playing third base last year, has improved wonderfully in fielding. Likewise, he has improved most surprisingly in batting. Andy is batting around .340 by the town clock.

Recently when Brooklyn gave Outfielder Gene Bailey and Shortstop Johnny Jones, under option to Indianapolis, for Outfielder Eddie Brown, High was moved to the top of the batting order. He has occupied that exalted position for five games and has hit safely in four of those five for a total of nine clouts. Last Monday, Andy failed to connect safely with the Cub pitchers, but he sacrificed, drew a pass and scored a run in a same Brooklyn won, 4 to 3.

Slow Ball Flurries Fool Dodgers. Slow ball pitchers, especially left-handers, give the Dodgers trouble. Wheat, Fournier and High are left-handed batters and hard swingers. High, with all respect to the more famous Zach Wheat, is probably the best of these three at jumping on a floater. Bill Sherdel being a slow ball left-hander, usually makes the free-swinging Dodgers look like bushers, or they murder him before the horrified Rickey can rush a rescue party into the breach.

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 13.—The cold weather is not bothering Helen Wills, American tennis champion, who is here to compete for the British title, but the daily rains so far have prevented her getting much real practice.

Her practice matches, thus far, have been almost exclusively with men. Among her opponents have been such stars as F. H. Jarvis, D. N. Greig and P. D. B. Spence.

Unlike players coming to England from the Middle West and Eastern portion of the United States, Miss Wills is not troubled by the coolness of the climate. The temperature, she said, was about the same as that of her home at Berkeley, near San Francisco.

The young tennis star intends to play only in the doubles at the Southampton tournament next week. She will have Mrs. George Wightman as partner. The following week in the Wimbledon championships she will play only in the singles. Immediately after the Wimbledon contest she will depart for Paris to take up the work of training on the hard courts, preparatory for the Olympic competition. Miss Wills and her mother are stopping at a quiet hotel in the country, convenient to both Southampton and Wimbledon.

Miss Wills and her mother are stopping at a quiet hotel in the country, convenient to both Southampton and Wimbledon.

By the Associated Press.
WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 13.—The cold weather is not bothering Helen Wills, American tennis champion, who is here to compete for the British title, but the daily rains so far have prevented her getting much real practice.

Her practice matches, thus far, have been almost exclusively with men. Among her opponents have been such stars as F. H. Jarvis, D. N. Greig and P. D. B. Spence.

Unlike players coming to England from the Middle West and Eastern portion of the United States, Miss Wills is not troubled by the coolness of the climate. The temperature, she said, was about the same as that of her home at Berkeley, near San Francisco.

The young tennis star intends to play only in the doubles at the Southampton tournament next week. She will have Mrs. George Wightman as partner. The following week in the Wimbledon championships she will play only in the singles. Immediately after the Wimbledon contest she will depart for Paris to take up the work of training on the hard courts, preparatory for the Olympic competition. Miss Wills and her mother are stopping at a quiet hotel in the country, convenient to both Southampton and Wimbledon.

PESSIMISM AMONG WESTERN DELEGATES

They Complain Republican Leaders Haven't Sensed the Needs of Farming States.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World
CLEVELAND, June 12.—Accepting the defiance of the forces of radicalism as represented by La Follette, reluctantly turning down the more progressive of the regular Republicans of the Middle West, the Republican convention was conservative to the bitter end.

The nomination of Gen. Charles G. Dawes emphasized the complete break between the progressive and conservative wings of the party. Dawes represents the business interests, against whom the Progressive Inquirer. He is the arch opponent of the open shop and therefore anathema to organized labor.

The LaFollette group smiled grimly when the General went over the line. No Republican nomination could have suited them better, for according to their opinion, it definitely aligns organized labor of the East with the organized Farmer-Labor movement of the West. They expressed this attitude by truculently shouting "No!" when the motion was made to make the nomination unanimous.

This convention has given birth to a new Republican party. Controlled by business men, who are inexperienced in politics, it now goes before the country as the uncompromising spokesman of the more conservative thought of the country.

In such a picture the Progressive South had no natural place. Nor could Judge Kenyon of Iowa have struck a note that would not have jarred the harmony of the situation.

The Wisconsin forces are all set to return here July 4 and launch the independent candidacy of Robert La Follette as the champion of radicalism. When the Lowden stampede occurred they registered a final protest by refusing to make that selection unanimous. They had come for war and not for peace, and warlike they remained to the end.

Progressives Disturbed.
The delegates who return to their homes the most disturbed are the moderate Progressives—those Republicans from the Middle West who have believed the Republican party has a place for them although they do not agree with the conservative attitude of the East. They recognize the forces which are working in their section. They have seen Brookhart replace Kenyon in Iowa, Magnus Johnson and Henrik Shipstead substitute for Knute Nelson and Frank B. Kellogg in Minnesota, and they are taking the place of McCumber in North Dakota.

They have seen the farming industry struggling against the innumerable conditions of the time. They have noted banks breaking and business men and farmers taking up holes in their belts. They realize there is ground swell of unrest throughout the entire Mississippi Valley section and have despaired at Cleveland because they complained the new leaders from New England refused to help them start the tide.

The administration, they complain, while anxious to help their section along accepted lines, has not seen the situation with anything but the eyes of New England. When they asked for farm relief legislation they were given additional opportunity to acquire new obligations. When the farmer issued his Macedonian cry, the complaint is that the War Finance Corporation aided the larger banks to keep the smaller ones, which merely postponed the day of reckoning.

When they asked for conferences with the spokesmen of the administration, Eugene Meyer and Frank Mondell were sent to them as Ambassadors, both of whom, it is complained, failed to see the Western situation as it really is. Neither the political nor the economic situation of the West, they complain, have been sensed or properly appraised by the administration.

Heavy Load to Carry.
This attitude, they say, has run through the entire convention proceedings, culminating in the curtain for the last act, which leaves them a heavy load to carry. The leaders will remain Republican, but probably with reservations. Senator Howell of Nebraska, for example, has expressed his position.

I have been elected a Republican," he says, "and I will remain a Republican. But I shall continue to advocate those things in which I believe."

Senator Norbeck of South Dakota says: "We will try and pull through, but we have a heavy load."

Other Western leaders express the same running note of pessimism.

Sympathy Strike Stops Cars in Athens.
From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World and the Manchester Guardian.
ATHENS, Ga., June 12.—A 24-hour strike of car men and street railway men has been called in sympathy with striking seamen and dockers today so that Athens is without transportation except for motor and horse vehicles. Premier Pangalos promulgated a decree mobilizing all railway men if the strike is not ended before morning.

BREAD

A Powerful Story of Today
By Charles G. Norris
(Copyright, 1924.)

CHAPTER FIFTY

"Glad to see you, Miss Sturgis," he said beaming. "Only, by Jove, you're not 'Miss Sturgis' any more! . . . Devlin, isn't it?"

Does Mr. Corey know you're here? He'll be delighted, I know. Wants to see you badly. Two or three matters have come up he'd like to ask you about; nobody 'round here seems to know a thing about them. . . . Come in; he'll be mighty glad to see you."

He pulled back the swing gate in the counter and walked with her towards Mr. Corey's office.

As Jeannette passed within a few feet of Miss Holland's desk and as her eyes met she mouthed:

"See you in just a minute."

"Here's an old friend of ours," said Mr. Allister, opening Mr. Corey's door.

The white head came up, and immediately a pleased flush spread over the face of the man at the desk.

"Well—well—well," he said, getting to his feet and coming to take both her hands. "Miss Sturgis! It's good to see you again."

"She's not Miss Sturgis any more," laughed Mr. Allister.

"That's so—that's so; it's 'Devlin,' of course. Well, Mrs. Devlin, you surely look as though marriage agreed with you."

They were all laughing in good spirits. A few moments of inconsequential remarks, and then Allister withdrew while Mr. Corey made Jeannette sit down.

"Oh, I must have a talk," he insisted, "and hear all about you."

The door opened, and young Tommy Livingston came in with a question on his lips. His eyes lighted as he recognized the caller.

"My new secretary," said Corey smiling.

"Oh, is that so?" Jeannette was pleased; the boy had always been a protégé of hers. "Well, Tommy, this is a step up for you!"

"Yes, indeed," he said, grinning. "I'm doing the best I know how."

"Tommy does very well," approved Mr. Corey.

"I didn't know you understood dictation," said Jeannette.

"I don't very well. I've got a stenographer in my office—member Miss Bates?—and I'm going to night school and learning shorthand. I can run a machine fairly decently now."

"Well, isn't that splendid?"

Presently she was alone with Mr. Corey again. He asked about her, about Martin, about her married life. She was frank with her answers.

"I shall never thank you enough," she said, "for persuading me to accept Mr. Devlin. I never would have married if you hadn't made me, and I never would have known what I missed. I guess I'd've been here for the rest of my days."

She was eager for his news, too.

Yes, he and Mrs. Corey were quite reconciled. She was very sorry she had maligned Jeannette. He was going to England in 10 days and was taking her with him. Baby was about the same; she would never be any better; they had an excellent trained nurse for her and she was to spend the rest of the summer at a camp in the Adirondacks. Willis had written a most interesting letter from Johannesburg; he and Ericson were trekking north through Matabeleland and Bulawayo; Mr. Corey did not expect to hear from him again for three months. Affairs at the office were about as usual; they expected to publish a big novel in the fall by Hobart Hauser; Garratt Farrington Trent had left his former publishers and come over to them; advertising was bad; there was some talk of a printers' strike; The Ladies' Fortune had been selling excellently on the stands; the pattern business was booming.

There were one or two matters he wanted to ask her about: What was the arrangement with Hardy as to the dramatic rights of Harassed? No record could be found of the agreement. And did she recall from what concern they had bought that last stock of special kraft wrapper? And the folder containing all the correspondence with the Electric Manufacturing Co. had disappeared. What could have become of it? She answered as best she could. When she got up to go, he accompanied her to the door of his office.

"I can't begin to tell you how we all miss you here," he said gravely, "and how much I do especially. It's been hard sledding without you. I've thought a hundred times—oh, a thousand times!—of how much you did for me to make the work easier and how much you lifted from my shoulders. I got used to it, I'm afraid, and took a good deal for granted. . . . But I'm glad you're married, that's where you belong, making a home for yourself and leading your own life."

The dinner to which Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gibbs were invited and to which after various postponements they ultimately came was a dismal failure from Jeannette's point of view. First of all, she was late with the meal itself, and in hurrying, spattered grease on her gown; the yeast powder biscuits would not rise, and the leg of lamb was underdone, the meat pink when Martin carved it. Then Martin, himself, was nervous and excited, and the cocktails he had with his guest before they sat down went to his head and made him talk and act silly. Lastly, and most important, the Gibbses were hopeless! Herbert Gibbs was flat-headed and there was no curve at the back of his neck, while the hair grew down under his collar sparse and short; he had an expressionless, stupid face and it was impossible to tell whether he was being bored or amused at the attempt of young Mr. and Mrs. Devlin to entertain him and his wife. Mrs. Gibbs was even less prepossessing. She was a plump German girl, with thin yellow hair done up in a knob on top of her head which frankly showed her white scalp through wide gaps. She was irritatingly voluble, had a piercing sharp nervous laugh, and exclaimed shrilly about whatever Jeannette said or did. She chattered unceasingly about her child, little "Herbie," who, it seemed, was only 10 months old, but could already both walk and talk, and she embarrassed Jeannette by asking in a whisper how soon there was going to be a little Devlin. There was nothing spontaneous in the conversation during the whole evening, neither while they sat at table nor later in the living room, where Mr. Gibbs sat stolidly puffing at cigars, sipping the red Burgundy with which Martin kept his glass filled, and Mrs. Gibbs rattled on about how they had found their home at Cohaness Beach on Long Island, and the involved circumstances connected with its eventual purchase. Mercifully they were obliged to take an early train home on account of "Herbie," but did not depart until they had warned their young hosts they would soon be expected to spend a Sunday with them in the country.

That night, going to bed, Martin and Jeannette had their first quarrel. It left her shaken and unhappy all the next day. She ridiculed their guests and Martin defended them; she declared they were stupid and common; he, that she didn't know them, that they were a very good-headed sort, that she had been cold and patronizing with Mrs. Gibbs, that her husband had noticed it, and become awfully "sore"; it would have been a "damn sight better," Martin concluded stormily, if they had never been asked.

"And after all the trouble I went to!" raged Jeannette to herself, hugging her side of the bed, rebellion strong within her. "Cooking all day long, planning everything out, going over to Columbus avenue twice, getting flowers for the table, working myself dizzy and ruining my organdie, just so he could make a good impression on them and perhaps help himself a little at the office!"

MY LOVE BIRDS

By Sophie Irene Loeb

OVER a year ago a friend made me a present of a pair of young African finches, so-called "love birds"—tiny Birds of Paradise. I would term them. And they have taught me many a lesson.

Times without number I have reflected that if only human beings could take their example from these birds, what a happy world this would be.

Their routine of life is so regular and so delightful that anyone who doubts his Maker need only observe these birds awhile and he will be assured that somewhere in the universe there is a Great Power that puts into little mites like these the desire to live, the preservation of self, and love—yes, love.

With the first sign of the sun they are dancing with glee because a new day is born and they are glad with it. And when we put the bath on the cage they act just like human beings, bounding from one twig to the other, exercising, jumping to the bath, though expressing their great glee in plunging and diving in and out.

And who taught these birds even to bathe as they do? For they get themselves clean somehow and they reveal in the water. It is their first concern—cleanliness. And when they are through they get together and relax—rest. After this they eat, drink and rest again a bit.

When there is music they seem fairly to dance to it and the joy of it seems to enter into their make-up. At twilight, when the sun is setting, they sit very close together, doubtless reflecting and dreaming about it all. Often in these rest periods you will catch one or the other leaning over and giving a fondling touch to the back or head or neck of its mate—real affection in the knowledge that they are enjoying something together. . . . something beautiful.

At night when the shades are drawn they get very close indeed, so that you could not put a blade between them. They are in a complete harmony, complete rest. There are no quarrels, no dissension, no arguments. Once in a while, they seem to enter into a heated discussion, but somehow they adjust it and are together again very soon. And at the end of it all they have a very peaceful day, and so the night follows the day.

Happy birds! Poor people they are who cannot gain something from watching these tiny creatures who know life so well and how to live it. Ah, there is the rub! So few of us know how to make the best of our environment. Here they are in a cage, yet making the most of it, being happy—at least having each other. For it is said that when one dies the other follows shortly after.

How few people indeed make their lives fit conditions. Instead they tear their hair and cry aloud at fate. They find nothing with which to be satisfied and contentment never finds them because they refuse to let it in.

"It will indeed be look to the birds and other dumbly living things and see how they accept their environment, striving, of course, to better themselves, but not entirely unhappy under any circumstances. If we could only cultivate the trait of tolerance with things as they are, so that nothing could put one actually out of the pale of some pleasure, the world would find fewer tears; and though we have trials something out of it could be gleaned and some sunshine enter into our lives."

MEDITATIONS

—OF A—

MARRIED WOMAN

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE PRECIOUS JEWEL

A MAN'S Wife may be the leading lady in his life—but his Private Secretary is the stage director, scene shifter, prompter, property man and "ensemble."

She is at once his shield, his watch-dog, his buffer, his alibi, his memory, his solace and his censor.

She is the shock-absorber between him and all the office pests. He can send her out to stave off the disgruntled client, the irate customer, the importunate salesman, or the bill-collector, in the sweet assurance that his little buffer and rebuffer will return with the triumphant smile of the Tiger on her placid face.

She is his alibi for all his careless mis-statements, incorrect quotations and grammatical errors—the shield behind which he dodges, the barrage which he throws up when attacked. Verily "misread notes" and "typographical errors" have saved many a man from ruin!

She is his Star-Witness for "overtime at the office." He can always PROVE by her that he was "detained on business"—even when the "business" was only a game of pinochle or Kelly-pool. But no man can prove anything by a wife unless it's SO; because a wife WILL ARGUE the matter.

His Secretary is his daily reminder, a rack on which to hang his cares and all the responsibility of keeping his appointments. He relies upon her as he does upon his watch—and, somehow, she never has to urge or nag him to keep his luncheon dates, as his wife has to urge him to be on time for dinner.

She is his solace and, at the same time, his censor—the little "safety-valve" in which he keeps all his secrets, and confides in moments of self-pity how "misunderstood" and "unappreciated" he is.

Yet she "holds him up to his better self," and is a check upon his temper, his extravagance, his explosive swearing and his extreme Summer negliges.

A wife may become a "habit"—but a P. S. is a positive addiction. And once a man becomes ADDICTED to his Personal Stenographer, he finds her as necessary as his three meals a day and as indispensable as his hat.

He may reason with himself that he could "get along without her." But just let her take a VACATION—and he is lost. A miserable creature, a ship without a rudder, a balloon without ballast, a one-armed man without a valet—helpless!

And he counts the days, and saves all the hard work, until she gets BACK!

Oh, yes, "P. S." may stand for Private Secretary, Personal Stenographer, or postscript—but it really means Precious Jewel! Copyright, 1924.

Heroines of Fiction

(Copyright, 1924.)

TO the incorrigible novel reader, there must be amusement in recalling the changed fashions in heroines, and these changes are not to be charged so much to the passage of time as to the personal preference of the heroines' creators.

Think how long the pocket Venus—unfashionable, ringleted, blue-eyed—ruled Novel Land. Because Dickens, the man, adored the rosy-poly, too-plump, too-pink women, who at 15 would be already stodgy, red-faced British matrons, sprang that brood of Dorcas, Dora, Agnes, Little Dorrit, Dolly Vardens and the too, too Little Nell at all.

They were little, but they put it all over the tall, gracious, stately, if arrogant, heroines of Thackeray. Two mighty artists working in different mediums! Thackeray could paint a gentleman, a great lady and a dashed scoundrel still a gentleman—which my adored Dickens could not do because of that touch of caricature in him—but Dickens got the decision on plump little heroines. During the romantic period, repetition of the romantic period, repetition of the worthy of her salt simply had to be superlatively, almost incredibly beautiful.

"I WHI Amann." When realism lifted its powerful matter-of-fact head, opposing idealism and depicting men and women and scenes exactly as they existed—heroines were at least comparatively beautiful, and very enigmatically and unpleasant.

But the thing that has become the bete noire, even of the novel fans, to whom history, books of adventure, travel, poetry, biography are anathema, is not alone the eternal paltriness of heroines, who enter stories with a bag of tricks on one arm and a minutely exact inventory of personal charms in the other hand for ready reference.

The reader's bete noire is the author's trick of clamorous repetition. The curbed lashes lifted slowly. "The lovely curved lashes glittered with tears." The curbed lashes? This and that, ad nauseam. Then some teller of tales feels his danger and sits right up straight and says:

"Now will I give them something different. I will amaze the novel reader. I will amaze the demurest bow-wow. My heroine shall be of an upturn, pulsant, all-consuming."

Brashly he attacks the job, only to fall down on it, just as the other man had fallen before him on a like job—and the women, too—save

Rich Girl, Poor Girl

BARBARA BACHELOR comes to visit Betty Benedict. Barbara is Betty's older sister—older in years and worldly wisdom. Barbara is a "business lady." She lives in a very charming little apartment with another handsome bachelor.

She is very efficient in everything but the affairs that old Dan Cupid dabbles in. And those she didn't have time for in the days when Dan was spreading his net and throwing his blinding gold-dust for her benefit. Oh—by all means—Dan would gladly bother with her still! But the gold-dust is a bit thinner—and the Dan that would sit by her fireside now would be a bit staid and, maybe, even dull.

She's been too busy for old Dan, and now he's a bit busy for her. She wears smart clothes, sees all the shows, has all her time to herself; her hair is always perfect, life is even, free, a bit bare; she is very critical; her money, her time, her mind—and her heart are all her own. There are no baby finger marks, either, on her windowpane or on her heart. None, save Betty's babies. And between me and you and old Dan they have made quite a mark, though she wouldn't admit it. Betty's second name is Busy. She hasn't many minutes to herself

FASHION FRILLS

There has been a renaissance of Roumanian blouses and jewelry this summer in London, a renaissance due to the visit of Queen Marie. Blouses, wide of sleeve and heavily embroidered, are cropping up everywhere as well as the thick, handsomely wrought peasant rings and armlets.

Today a handkerchief is a mere wisp of brilliance. Of chiffon, in dazzling green, orange, purple or flaming red, elaborately embroidered, it blazes out from a coat or blouse pocket. Such such an air of splendor that often it is the only touch of color needed on an otherwise sombre costume.

Among the new shoes for street wear is a pump, with a low but graceful heel in dark brown suede. Tailored and conservative it has no cut down design nor straps. Its only ornament is a small oblong, oxidized colonial buckle.

It is worth noting that pass-mantelets is lavishly used on certain of the newest summer dance frocks. One of these, in pale blue chiffon, has a wide band of pass-mantelets around the modesty oval neck, while four very large flower motifs are posed on the skirt.

The vogue in Paris for wearing a large number of glass bracelets is being adopted today even by brides. One bride at a recent smart wedding had nine silver, glass and crystal bracelets on her right arm.

Single delicate bands of forget-me-nots, heather, lilies of the valley and tiny pink French roses are being worn in the evening outburst by many of the young girls dancing these evenings at the Berkeley and Claridge's in London.

Perhaps that explains the world-conquering beauty of Helen of Troy, apotheosized as a very goddess. The man, each man's imagination gave to her the type of beauty he adored, black brown or fair as dawn.

All the same, it takes courage to create an ugly heroine—and—Oh! They don't do it, that's all.

Knowledge will not be acquired without pain and application. It is troublesome and deep digging for pure water, but when once you come to the spring they rise up and meet you.

Gentleness is revealed in the last analysis of greatness. The Murrer is always weak.

"Everything About the Home" By WANDA

Solving Some Problems of Sick

WE are nearly all overtaken at one time or another with illness and confinement to bed or bedroom, and we learn at such a time to appreciate everything that has been invented or become known to doctors and nurses for the comfort of the sick.

If confined to bed one of the greatest comforts is to have an abundance of fresh bedding. Plenty of fresh, clean, fine cotton sheets, and enough fine, soft pillow-slips to change daily are a necessity, cotton being considered better than linen. The pillows, themselves, should be slipped with a heavy flannel undercase to protect them, and there should be enough pillows to allow one set to air and sun while the other set is in use. A hair pillow is often the greatest comfort to put between the knees when the patient is turned on his side, or to place at her back when she sits up at meal time.

Blankets and extra quilts should be light, but warm. Down-filled quilts are preferable to the cotton-filled. In some cases, the silk covers are slipped off and thin muslin ones put on, so that they may be used freely without fear of soiling them. A wooden back-rest is a convenience and is a firm support for pillows. The back-rests are expensive and are to be had in up-to-date shops nearly everywhere. The little bed-tray with folding legs is another convenience, if not necessary. The tiny protective rail that keeps things from falling off the bed, and entertains them, we take all these things and get a little rest. Crumbs in a bed are a tragedy, and all precautions should be taken to prevent them. A small washroom may be used after each serving of food, and make sure there are no footprints left.

In changing a bed and moving the patient to the opposite side of the bed, the fresh bedding down, then drawing the patient towards the head of the bed, and gradually and finishing the under-sheet. Draw the under-sheet tightly as possible at all times. Wrinkles are fatal to comfort. Optimism and cheerfulness are the best of all remedies for the patient's well-being. Nothing in the way of comfort, anxiety or family dissension should be allowed to enter the sick-room.

The Man on the Sandbox

by L. C. Davis

SISLER DAY.
At last George Sisler had his day. And got his baseball letter. But here and now we'd like to say.

He's had some days much better. The Browns, who spoiled the day for Ruth. When Babe got his diploma. Before "Kid" Hoyt, the High School youth. Were in a state of coma.

A former playmate helped to spill the beans for Mr. Sisler. When Johnson landed on the pill. It proved a four-base whistler. Across the right field fence it soared. As graceful as a fairy. And then and there two runs were scored. One more than necessary.

Two army blimps were flying low Above the field of battle. While they maneuvered to and fro. We heard their motors rattle. Although we lost the game of ball. We wept not in our hanks. And a pleasant time was had by all. Especially the Yankees.

TOO TRUE.
Coolidge was such a top-heavy favorite that he scared all the dark horses out of the race.

In fact there was no betting except on who would get second place.

At any rate by this time Congress must be pretty well hup, as the feller says, to what is going on in the public mind.

There 'aint gotta' be no band wagon this trip. Got aboard the ice wagon and keep cool with Coolidge.

As might be expected, Mr. Lodge was the first to feel the blight of the Coolidge frost. When an erstwhile popular blackface comedian gave a chorus girl a black eye he inadvertently gave himself one.

Some people seem to think that because women have the suffrage it is all right to make them suffer.

Although enjoying equal rights, women can never hope to exchange wallops with man with any degree of success.

The Republicans were so busy wrangling about the wet and dry planks that they completely forgot to insert an oil plank in their platform.

ABSOLUTELY.
Regardless of the attitude on the eighteenth amendment, keynote speeches are certainly dry reading.

CROPS FIRST.
Pa Coolidge said he was too busy with his spring planting and harrowing to attend the convention at Cleveland. A harrowing tale, we call it.

The man on the sandbox says that although George Sisler had his picture taken with a Rear Admiral it still looks like first division.
